Environmental study may be in order for Carmel Point homes

By DAVID LELAND

UNLESS MONTEREY County Supervisors show a dramatic change of heart in the next seven days, extensive environmental reports will be in order before homes can be built on the Stewart property.

Acting on an appeal lodged by Carmel Point resident Charles Chrietzberg, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors unanimously agreed this week that construction of eight homes on the 39,000-square-foot site could present cumulative environmental impacts.

"I'm firmly convinced that this is not an average lot," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman. "It's not an average subdivision."

Until several years ago, the now-vacant lot, bordered by Scenic Road and Ocean View and Isabell avenues, served as home to the stately Stewart mansion.

But when the land was sold to Bay Area-based Scenic Associates, it was revealed that the seven partners planned to build a total of eight homes on the lot.

Despite public outcry at the time, it was shown that, at the turn of the century, the parcel was legally divided into nine small parcels. Lot lines were adjusted by the county several years ago to number eight.

A number of months ago, the Monterey County Planning Commission approved plans for Morgan Gilman to construct a 1,688-square-foot home on his lot.

While Chrietzberg and most Carmel Point residents said they believed Gilman's home was tasteful, they worried that somewhere down the line traffic, erosion and drainage could become a problem if all the lots were built upon.

Gilman's attorney, Anthony Lombardo, argued before the board that the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) exempts single-family homes from exhaustive environmental study.

But supervisors questioned whether this might be one of the times where an exception should be made.

"These eight lots are going to need to be coordinated on a common ground of technical information," Strasser Kauffman said.

Fourth District Supervisor Sam Karas was blunt when he said, "There are significant impacts there. If someone says there are not, they are kidding themselves."

'I'm firmly convinced that this is not an average lot. It's not an average subdivision.'
— Karin Strasser Kauffman

DURING THE often-testy hearing, supervisors' tempers flared as they discussed their options.

One reason for dissention were recommendations from the planning staff and county counsel to deny the appeal.

"It concerns me that what we are now saying is that, 'it's only our staff's opinion,' " said 2nd District Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck, who originally favored letting Gilman proceed with his home, while ordering an EIR on the remainder of the property.

She called the idea of asking for an EIR from Gilman "inappropriate and unfair."

But 1st District Supervisor Marc Del Piero was adamant that it was the board's duty to ask for an environmental study.

"Carmel Point is one of the most ecologically sensitive areas in Monterey County," he said. "How does one come to the conclusion that there are no environmental impacts if evaluation has not been presented?"

Del Piero indicated that the staff's cursory environmental data was merely speculative.

To the end, Lombardo questioned the need or prudence in asking for an EIR.

"There is no EIR in the world that can tell you what every eight houses will look like," he said.

But Michael Albov, representing Chrietzberg, told the board that they needed to be consistent.

"If this were a new, eight-lot subdivision you would require an EIR," he said.

According to a staff report, eight homes on the Stewart property would generate about 80 traffic trips daily.

Supervisors agreed that traffic on weekends is currently at a standstill on the one-lane Scenic Road, with parking at a premium.

"I was torn in the past, but I'm not torn anymore," said Strasser Kauffman, after listening to testimony. "There are red flags here."

In adopting her motion, however, Strasser Kauffman recommended that Gilman be exempt from paying his share of the EIR.

The EIR would initially be funded by the board, with the remaining seven property owners paying back the loan.

Supervisors set a continued hearing for 10 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 16, to hear from legal counsel if there is a time limit that they must work under.

During that hearing, the board will hear a report from Bob Slimmon, county planning and building director, on how long the EIR process will take.

Fire flight

ONE OF three fire-fighting helicopters assisting at the Garrapata Canyon fire last week, worked into the night, repeatedly dipping its 385-gallon capacity Bolus Bucket into the Pacific Ocean and circled around to disperse the contents onto the flames. The fire consumed about 40 acres and was believed to have been started by an arsonist. California Department of Forestry crews, with assists from the U.S. Forest Service, Mid-Coast and Carmel Highlands crews, fought the blaze. For more on the fire see story inside. (Susan Beck photo.)

Measure N may save lands slated for development south of Carmel

By DAVID LELAND

PROPONENTS OF Measure N are touting the advisory vote as a possible remedy for construction of at least two projects slated for south of the Carmel River.

Placed on the Nov. 6 ballot by the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District, the bill will gauge public support for the agency's ambitious plan to acquire nine privately owned parcels on the peninsula.

"It guarantees open space, which many of our residents have requested," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman. "Our public has been devoted to open space causes."

Strasser Kauffman pointed out that she is acting as a private citizen in support of Measure N. The bill has also gained support from supervisors Sam Karas and Marc Del Piero.

Property targeted for acquisition under the bill include: parcels east of Point Lobos (the site of Point Lobos Ranch and Coast Ranch); dunes in the cities of Marina, Sand City and Seaside; Del Monte Beach; window on the bay; Cannery Row waterfront property; the Miller property in Pacific Grove, next to state-owned Asilomar; and a recreation trail extension from Marina to Point Lobos.

The park district estimates that the coastal parcels would cost in excess of $63 million.

"We need local commitment to go to state and federal agencies for matching funds," said Gary Tate, park manager, adding that the agency has obtained more than $4.8 million in state and federal matching funds during the past 17 years.

Specifically, Measure N asks voters within the district their feelings on an assessment of not more than $36 annually per single-family dwelling for up to 30 years.

The park district includes all the peninsula cities, the Carmel Valley and the Big Sur coast.

The assessment, of course, cannot guarantee any acquisitions, but money raised will allow the park district to move toward its goals.

A proportional amount of assessment would be levied on commercial, visitor-serving and other land uses.

Tate added a recent poll conducted by his agency revealed that 63 percent of the respondents believed that more money should be spent on coastal acquisition.

'It guarantees open space, which many of our residents have requested. Our public has been devoted to open space causes.'
— Karin Strasser Kauffman

The park district has two alternatives after the Nov. 6 election, Tate said.

If more than 70 percent of the voters advise the district to continue its efforts to buy land, the park district will consider issuing a bond measure to raise the money.

With less support but still a majority, the park district will consider the assessment district.

Sad reading

Dear Editor:

How sad to read about the Carmel Youth Center Board of Directors' "Pink Cadillac Party." What kind of message are we sending to our youth when we condone "complimentary beer and wine" and then add "no-host bar?"

Remember kids, drugs are only allowed for the adults.

Is this the only way to raise funds? These are the directors and leaders of the Carmel Youth Center? Shame.

Poor taste

Dear Editor:

We feel that Bill Bates cartoon in the Oct. 4 issue of the Pine Cone was in very poor taste and we also feel that the Pine Cone did not execute good judgment in publishing this cartoon.

Zenophobic propaganda

Dear Editor:

I have always enjoyed Mr. Bates cartoons, however, I would like to comment on the last two. "The Lone Bonsai" was clever, while I feel "The Rodge" was in extremely poor taste bordering on being offensive. The Pine Cone should apologize to its readers for publishing this example of zenophobic/racist propaganda. Perhaps you feel it's time to replace the U.N. flag in the park with a confederate flag.

Appalled by purchase

Dear Editor:

I am appalled by the purchase of Pebble Beach and 17 Mile Drive by the Japanese.

If you want to see what the Japanese do with fine ocean-front properties that they purchase, take a look at the Halekulani Hotel on Waikiki Beach, Oahu. As one of the three original hotels on Waikiki, it should have been preserved. It had a beautiful old stone lodge surrounded by two-story bungalows and open space. And there was The House Without a Key where Robert Louis Stevenson used to do some of his writing overlooking the ocean. The lovely Hawaiian people who worked there remembered you from one stay to the next.

Then the Japanese bought it. Gone are the bungalows and the open space, and up went two huge high-rises. The House Without a Key is part of one of the high-rises – there is a little plaque on the wall with the name on it or you would never recognize it. The stone lodge is still there but so squashed in between the high-rises that it might as well be gone.

Some people say not to worry – that the Japanese bring stability and a steady infusion of capital to their purchases. Did they stabilize the Halekulani? Absolutely, with lots of concrete. Did they pour money into it? Yes, it's now just one more expensive hotel on Waikiki, but who needs it? I will never go back to the Halekulani. I hope I won't have to say the same thing about Pebble Beach and the 17 Mile Drive in one, two or five years from now.

Enforce the rules

Dear Editor:

Make 'em put it back. Let's all demand that the city council put the $7,000 removed from the budget for the purpose of buying a portable radar speed display unit back into the fiscal scheme. We need the machine.

Society is run by a massive collection of rules that we call laws. Observance of the rules is the principal way by which society, however imperfect, moves along. We don't do murder or robbery for the most part because it is against the rules that we choose to observe.

When the rules seem desirable from the societal point of view but not everyone chooses to observe those laws, we are required to enforce the rules – hence the need for police and armies and courts and the trappings of enforcement authority. But all would agree that without observance that society really couldn't hire enough police to make the rules effective – witness prohibition, a rule that society in the main choose not to observe.

Traffic rules follow the same consideration. We choose to observe the rules as we recognize they are best for us all in the long run and we have just a touch of fear that enforcement may be behind the next hedge.

Through gift or purchase the cities of Pacific Grove and Monterey have large portable radar-operated devices that can be placed on streets most in need of observance where they act a s visible reminders to the driver that he may no be correctly observing the speed rules for that particular roadway.

What are the virtues of such a speed device? It surely reminds the passing motorist what is deemed to be the appropriate speed for that block; it tells him what he is doing to observe that rule or how far he is from such behavior; and it encourages the drive to change his driving pattern to one of observance. It doesn't remove entirely the need for enforcement, of course, for not everyone obeys the rules that he knows nor will he even when they are brought visibly to his attention. But such a reminder should encourage many more drivers to observe the rules and thus reduce the need for enforcement.

San Antonio Street, San Carlos, Carpenter and Rio Road by the Mission are streets which by their natures are likely to encourage speeding. It is almost impossible to avoid it under normal and non-thinking conditions near the Mission.

Currently the police department egages oftimes in enforcement for lack of an alternative. We have all noted the officer tucked away in the corner of the parking lot or in the bushes next to the baseball field or across the street in front of the park. But when that Big Sign tells you that you are going 40 in a 25 zone, it is probably the rare driver who doesn't at least try to modify his speed toward the acceptable level.

The machine costs but $7,000, which is a pittance for a city such as Carmel that spends civic funds with rare abandon oftentimes. But if it isn't available, why a blitz program by the police department can pick up 150 speeders on Rio Road alone in a week or two and the resultant fines after the county takes its share should be sufficient to pay for the machine. And enforcement might give way to observance, at least in some measure.

Without resorting to enhanced enforcement, the city council can find the purchase price quickly by taking the $8,000 set aside for the March vote on changing the size restrictions on Carmel housing. City officials are elected to make decisions. They do not need to take "hot potato" items to the electorate at expensive election costs.

In the event that the voting public doesn't like the decisions, a group of voters may initiate a vote on the issue or they may wait until the next election and cast the council out of office or if they feel strongly on the matter, they can start a recall motion, spend the extra money and get the "wrong-voting" council members out.

Ken White surely appreciates that this is what happened to a recent Carmel School Board when a significant segment of the voters disapproved of their actions. Radar aside, the council should make the decisions, keep a policy from being cast in stone, and be prepared to take any heat coming forward as the result of their actions. This goes with the power and prestige of the territory of office.

Public speaking

Dear Editor:

Teach public speaking in the elementary schools. It can be a part of English class. Club meetings, and concerts, once or twice a month are devices that stimulate thought organization for public speaking.

Enuciation is most important. Teach all students to speak clearly. Expression, posture, gestures and audience awareness is also a part of the training. Get rid of "and's," "well's," and "so's." This early training will get rid of "butterflies" before the children are adults.

Now is the time to make a public speaker.

Rally 'round the library

THE FOUNDING of Carmel's first library took place in early 1904 and was established in a private home until funds could be raised for the building of a rustic shingled cottage which became an integral part of village life.

In the 20s, Mrs. Ella Reid Harrison provided handsomely in her will for the construction of our present library to honor her husband Judge Ralph Chandler Harrison.

Sixty-two years after Harrison Memorial Library was first open to the public, it continues to be an enduring monument, a cherished legacy for present and future generations. It is important to children and young people, to our adult and retired community, to our schools and local business.

HML has one of the highest ratios of library cards issued to residents – an astonishing 95 percent – of any town in the United States. An additional 8,000 cards belong to readers residing outside the city limits.

The patrons of all ages who frequently visit the main library, situated in the heart of Ocean Avenue, and the busy Park Branch, now almost two years old, tend to leave with a smile on their face. They find the books they need – or happily discover new books and magazines. In matters of reference, the staff is unfailingly helpful and swift. And, always, there is a friendly greeting. For the "regulars," the library is a haven, a vital part of their lives.

The members of the library board of trustees take their responsibilities seriously, and recently they faced an uncomfortable reality. Although the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea continues to provide the budget for personnel and maintenance, severely strained state and county funding is no longer sufficient to cover rising costs and needed materials.

The trustees were concerned that Harrison Memorial Library might soon find itself unable to afford the wide selection of books, periodicals and special services its patrons have come to depend upon.

These prudent people have moved into action, and their foresight has resulted in the newly formed Carmel Public Library Foundation. The foundation's goal is to protect, preserve and enhance this library that for so long has been the jewel in Carmel's crown. Thus they have initiated an annual Book Program designed to generate enough funding to provide the entire annual operating budget for the Library.

CPLF will seek contributions this year for books and equipment and to secure income sufficient to cover two years' operating expenses for the foundation. The more ambitious phase of this program is to begin to cultivate major gifts for a $3 million endowment which will permanently safeguard Harrison Memorial Library.

The board members of the foundation include Jack Billwiller, president; Joseph M. Chaffers, vice president; Philo K. Holland, secretary; J. Randolph Elliott, treasurer; and John H. Hicks, Cecil Wahle and Margaret Christensen. HML director Margaret Pelikan serves as library staff liaison, and Maria Gitin is foundation executive director on a consulting basis.

These are good, caring, experienced individuals who have a big job ahead of them. We're impressed by the board member who seemed to sum up his colleagues' thoughts. "I feel privileged to be on this board," he said. "I can't think of anything more important to Carmel and to its future than the library."

In these early days of lengthy, serious meetings and grant applications, already $28,000 has been donated to the foundation by private individuals and the McMahan, Grover Hermann and Dunspaugh-Dalton trusts.

In upcoming issues of the Pine Cone, you'll be reading more about the inner workings and myriad services of the Library. And you may feel a renewed sense of pride in being part of a town which the world has long recognized as a place where culture and education are respected and fostered.

We've always counted on Harrison Memorial Library, perhaps even taken it for granted. Now, we need to do our part. The Pine Cone heartily endorses the Book Program and urges all residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea and its sphere of influence to rally round this very special library.

A scary moment

THE CARMEL Fire Department responded with one engine Monday afternoon Oct. 8 when a brushfire broke out in Monterey and quickly spread to Pebble Beach. Residents of the Tanglewood condominiums (left), watched anxiously as flames exploded only 500 yards from their complex; they were evacuated at about 2:15 p.m. by Monterey police as a precautionary measure. Meanwhile, U.S. Coast Guard helicopters dumped ocean water on the fire, while Navy planes (right), spread massive amounts or orange fire retardent. The fire was contained at 4:30 p.m. and scorched about 20 acres of brush. No structures were damaged. (David Leland photos.)

Two big pipeline projects slated for Carmel streets

By FRANK GEORGE

TWO SIGNIFICANT underground pipeline projects will be underway in the streets of Carmel within the next two weeks according to the city's public works department.

One will be coordinated by PG&E and the other will be the work of the Carmel Area Wastewater District.

PG&E will replace gas lines on Ocean Avenue, Dolores Street and the vicinity of north Camino Real and north Carmelo starting the week of Oct. 15. PG&E spokesman Bill Stedman said there will be "some inconveniences" to foot and street traffic as the project progesses. Traffic will be rerouted during these periods, he said.

Dozens of resident gas lines at a time will be cut off for six-hour periods, Stedman said, but the utility company will notify customers a week in advance of the shut-offs.

Stedman said the project is necessary because the old steel lines have a history of failure, often resulting in minor gas leaks.

"Failure would be eminent in the future," he said.

The old pipes will be inserted with replacement plastic pipe to minimize excavation. The new piping will last in excess of 100 years, according to Stedman.

"So this council won't have to fool with it," he said, referring to the Forest and Beach Commission, which heard details on the projects at a special meeting Oct. 4.

There will be small holes in the sidewalk at meter boxes and intersections, and the replacements will be done in small sections. Funding for the work will be tapped from ongoing maintenance costs on resident PG&E bills. Stedman said $800,000 has been appropriated for gas line projects in Carmel.

Jim Cullem, director of Carmel Public Works Department, will notify all shop owners on Ocean Avenue before the work begins on or around Oct. 17. PG&E is holding a pre-construction conference for concerned citizens and business owners from 9 to 11 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 11 at Carmel City Council Chambers at City Hall on Monte Verde Street.

Digging for the sewer line project began Oct. 8., and David Sollid of the Carmel Area Wastewater District said the project should take between 30 and 45 days.

Ancient sewer pipes beneath Monte Verde Avenue from 13th to Ninth Street will be replaced with modern plastic piping. Only residents of the area will be allowed to drive through the job site during the work hours, but the street will reopen to all traffic in the evenings.

There should be no worry about tree damage resulting from the digging at either job site, according to City Forester Gary Kelly. He said foremen will carefully protect trees from any damage done up to heights of 6 feet, and crews will stop digging mechanically near root systems. They will only be permitted to dig by hand in such areas, Kelly said.

Sollid said 20-foot sections of the 55-year-old clay pipes will be replaced at the Monte Verde site. The work will take place in weak areas discovered by a special subterranean video camera rented by the wastewater district.

As the drought goes on, tree roots grope for water sources underground, often attacking sewer sytems, Sollid explained. He said every homeowner in the area has been notified about the project and the detours.

First reading of restrictions on golf courses will be considered

By FRANK GEORGE

THE FIRST reading of an ordinance restricting water consumption by area golf courses will be heard at a special Monterey Peninsula Water District board meeting this Monday.

'The bottom line for me is with a 25-percent cutback we save approximately 125 acre feet over what we would with a 20-percent reduction.'

— Kenneth Long

The latest version of Ordinance No. 50 requires the courses to collectively reduce their water use by 25 percent from the 1987-88 base year. The meeting will start at 2 p.m. Monday, Oct. 15 at the Monterey City Council Chambers on Pacific Street in Monterey.

Although the golf courses will be obligated to conserve by 25 percent, their non-mandatory goal will be a 27-percent reduction. The savings will be monitored on a quarterly basis, and fines of $11,000 per excess acre foot will be assessed semi-annually.

If the Greater Monterey Bay Area Golf Association can achieve the 25 percent savings by the end of the water year however, any fines accrued from previous quarters will be forgiven. (The water year began Oct. 1, and it ends next Sept. 30.)

The board has been debating the issue for more than a year, and the 13-member association was formulated in response to the ordinance.

District General Manager Jim Cofer said the directors brainstormed the latest offering at a special board meeting last month. Staff attorney David Laredo penned the draft for the board.

"The bottom line for me is with a 25-percent cutback we save approximately 125 acre feet over what we would with a 20-percent reduction," said Director Kenneth Long. "That's pretty much how I'm going to go."

Director Morris Fisher, however, wasn't as enthusiastic.

"I think it's onerous," he said, adding he won't support the draft because under Ordinance No. 49, all others in the district are bound to only a 20-percent savings. "But I'm willing to compromise and vote for it if it's a 23-percent reduction," Fisher said.

If any course chooses to drop out of the association, they will be put under the constraints of Ordinance 49.

Nick Lombardo of Rancho Canada Golf Club said the association finds everything in Ordinance 50 acceptable except the 25 percent clause. He said they think the extra water use reduction will put greens and fairways in jeopardy.

Lombardo said the association is taking a hard look at the ordinance, and they're thinking about operating under Ordinance No. 49.

"And there may be other options," he said. Asked what those might be, he said he could not yet comment on them.

The new ordinance was conceived after the district learned residents were conserving 30 percent annually under Ordinance 49, while the golf courses managed less than 20 percent. Resident water groups complained, and the first version asked for a 27-percent reduction, to make up for water that was already lost.

Unsung heroes work hard to help city keep its charm

By FRANK GEORGE

IT'S 4 a.m. on a typical morning, and the streets of Carmel are safe and well marked, thanks to city street painter Ron Prieto.

At 7 a.m., city gardener Denise Henry admires Devendorf Park's dark green grass as she opens a sprinkler valve. Then, at 9, Forest and Beach worker Jim Pingree cheerfully picks up an empty beer can at Mission Trails Park and tosses it in his litter sack.

Every day, trees are trimmed, walkways are swept, greenery is watered and public buildinsg are kept clean. The city's streets are safe as well, since employees are instructed to report any suspicious activities. It's a huge task that is accomplished so well that virtually no one is aware of it.

"If it's done well, you don't notice it. If it's not done well, you do notice it," said Carmel Public Works Director Jim Cullem. Cullem and City Forester Gary Kelly oversee 24 dedicated city employees, and most of them have grass stains on their knees, dirt under their fingernails, and sand in their shoes from their duties.

One of these happy and dedicated workaholics is Eddie Caldwell of the public works department. Caldwell assists city mason Clarke Waite on many of the brickwork jobs. He has been employed by the City of Carmel for about two and a half years and he's quite proud of it.

"I was the kid who went out and ran his bike across the newly paved streets," said Caldwell, who first picked up a brick when he was 13. "Either that or I would enjoy the smell of the fresh asphalt."

Caldwell said Carmel is one of the best-maintained cities in California. Gardener Henry agrees.

After watering and fertilizing the park on a particular day, she made sure all the sidewalks on Ocean Avenue were litter-free and turned on all the drip-irrigation systems in the business district. Then, drip systems on Junipero Street were activated by the busy gardener.

"I'm so happy. Look, it's not leaking anymore," she said later as she finished screwing a new pressure regulator on a drip line at Sunset Center. "Look how much water was here before."

Henry has been keeping Carmel green and healthy for two years. She and everyone else who clean and maintain the city and its forest said Kelly and City Administrator Doug Schmitz provide a very positive working atmosphere. She admitted, however, that she doesn't enjoy watering.

"I'm really good with plants, but irrigation is my least favorite activity. That's why I call it 'irritation.' "

Henry, who is also a wife and mother of one, said her goal is to put every lawn and planter in Carmel on drip irrigation. She said this form of watering is the thriftiest. The liquid can't be seen because it flows directly to roots through small tubes.

"I like the creativity of my job," said Henry. Asked where creativity comes into play, she said improving shapes and hues in the city's gardens gives her a sense of accomplishment.

Nevertheless, Henry doesn't tend a garden at home because her work ethic during the week makes her tired of getting her hands dirty by the time Friday rolls along.

Friday doesn't always mean anything to Bernard Martino, the city's building maintenance supervisor. He often gets calls from nocturnal pedestrians who notice lights left on in the restroom at Devendorf Park or a door left open in a building at Vista Lobos.

Before Summer Parkfest performances at Devendorf, Martino and his crew hook up sound systems and assemble staging. Then they dismantle the stage and unplug the speakers when the performers finish.

"Everybody sees the band and hears the music, but people aren't aware of all the prep work that Bernard and his people are responsible for," said Cullem.

Shortly after last October's earthquake, someone had to hook up the power at the earthquake operations center in the basement of the Carmel Police Department. Luckily, Martino was there to skillfully tap into another line for emergency power.

Heavy rainstorms in the winter of 1983 saw Martino climbing trees and securing branches.

Government Day set for Oct. 11

By FRANK GEORGE

THE CARMEL City Council and members of all the city's committees will discuss the city's 75th birthday and get acquainted with one another at the second annual City Government Day on Thursday, Oct. 11.

The get-together will begin at 3:30 p.m. on the stage at Sunset Cultural Center on San Carlos Street at Ninth Avenue. The proceedings are slated to last two hours and Mayor Jean Grace will preside.

Commissioners from the Carmel Planning Commission, the Forest and Beach Commission, the Architectural Preservation Commission, the Community and Cultural Commission, the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees, the Parking Committee, the Recreation Commission and the Rio Park Planning and Use Committee are expected to attend.

Chairpersons of each group will give three-minute presentations on their committee's goals and accomplishments at the meeting.

Also on the agenda, a new committee responsible for planning and implementing the city's 75th anniversary celebration will be appointed. The city was incorporated on Halloween in 1916.

Grace, who has been a classical music connoisseur since she was 5, likened the gathering to a well-orchestrated symphony.

"I was telling (city clerk) Jeanne Brehmer I'm going to do it like an orchestra," she said. "I'll just conduct it all."

Although she said she will not hold public hearings at the event, the public is welcome and encouraged to attend.

Commissioners may express feelings about the access or lack of access they are experiencing with the city council at the informal meeting, Grace said.

She said the idea for the celebration was born from a lack of communication experienced by some of the commissioners last year. No communication problems, however, have surfaced this year, according to Grace.

The mayor said she was pleased with the outcome of last year's City Government Day. She said different committee members became acquainted with one another last time and they were able to learn about each other's responsibilities.

Grace stressed the novelty of the get-together, saying the large group "might bring up some interesting issues."

Unsung heroes

"We work early hours so as not to disturb day employees," he humbly said.

Humility is one of the virtues possessed by Pingree. He and his partner Russ Oden are in charge of keeping the mini-parks and the beach litter-free. Pingree also delivers non-potable water to residents of the village so they can keep their gardens growing and keep their Cal-Am bills low. He said the deliveries will cease on Oct. 12 and begin again after the first of the year.

The two also assist in the unenviable task of burying dead sealife washed ashore by the tides. Sea lions, sea otters, and dolphins are now resting peacefully under the sands of Carmel Beach thanks to Oden and Pingree.

Once, someone from the Forest and Beach Department discovered a giant squid that measured about 8 feet across on the shores of Carmel. Oden said the slippery remains were turned over to scientists.

"I've found watches, bits and pieces of clothing and scuba diving equipment while raking the beach," said Oden, who uses an all-terrain vehicle while cleaning up the beach. "Once, I found a truck. Some guys had driven their Bronco down to the beach one night. High tide came in and the front end was actually floating. They were frantically trying to get someone to help them out."

Mike Branson, an assistant forester, helps out the city's trees by eliminating pesty bark beetles. The quarter-inch long pests' larvae girdle oaks and Monterey pines by boring laterally through their cambium layers.

"We'll take a mallet and a chisel and follow their tunnels," said Branson. "Then we'll take them out by smashing them." He said often there are too many larvae and adult beetles tunneling through a tree, and they can't save it.

"We try to save every tree we can. They (the bark beetles) are here every year, but this year they're really bad," Branson said.

Be that as it may, city mason Waite, who comes from a long line of bricklayers from Scotland, said he's been working on his knees for so long he doesn't know what else to do. His ambition is to pull out and replace all the damaged concrete in Carmel with intricate brickwork.

The craftsman said residents don't often notice his handiwork. He does, though.

"I live here and I have to do the best job because I see it every day," said Waite, aptly summing of the feelings of his fellow employees.

Pre-trial hearing for Carmel man on battery charges is continued

By FRANK GEORGE

LOCAL DEVELOPER Doyle Moses' pre-trial hearing for an alleged battery charge involving City Forester Gary Kelly has been delayed until Friday, Oct. 12.

Moses is accused of battery in a Sept. 5 incident where he reportedly hit Kelly in the face during an argument over the defendant's planter strip at his Fourth Avenue home. Through his lawyer, Richard Rosen of Pacific Grove, Moses pleaded not guilty at the Sept. 26 arraignment.

Both the defendant and the victim have accounts of the incident listed in a Sept. 5 police report filed by Carmel Police Det. Sgt. Pete Poitras.

There were no witnesses to the incident, although a city employee arrived at the scene moments afterwards.

Moses' account says Kelly actually grabbed him by the back of the neck in what initially seemed like a friendly manner. As the squeezing got harder, Moses said, he realized it wasn't a friendly gesture. He said he then shouted obscenities at Kelly and in defense, pushed the city forester away from him.

Kelly's statement says Moses challenged and threatened him before trying to kick him in the groin. The forester said he was able to block the initial attack, but because he is nearly blind in his right eye, he was unable to see a punch coming from Moses' left hand that hit him in the side of the face.

Prior to the scuffle, the two were discussing plans for a planter strip that sits on public property directly in front of the defendant's house.

On Aug. 7, the Carmel City Council approved an encroachment permit for the strip, subject to Kelly's specifications. On the day of the incident, Kelly had driven by the site to see if the requirements had been met by Moses.

The council rescinded the encroachment permit at its Oct. 2 meeting because it felt Moses had not met its conditions for a permit. During his presentation to the council at that meeting, Moses became extremely agitated, and at one point he compared his troubles with the city to the Nuremberg Trials in which the Allies tried Nazi war criminals.

In arguing for the permit at the previous meeting, Moses had said he landscaped the planter because the deteriorating asphalt was unsightly. It was often used as a parking space by visitors with motor homes or recreational vehicles, Moses had said.

Councilmembers and a resident who addressed them expressed concerns about the boulders and the varieties of vegetation Moses had planted in the strip.

Kelly, who did not press charges (although the DA's office elected to do so), would not comment on the incident or the pre-trial hearing held Wednesday morning (Oct. 10), but he said he will appear in court and testify when he is subpoenaed.

At the Oct. 10 pre-trial hearing, the matter was continued to 8:15 a.m. Friday, Oct. 12 in Courtroom No. 2 at Monterey County Municipal Court, 1200 Aguajito Road.

Capt. Don Fuselier of the Carmel Police Department said Moses could get jail time or be forced to pay a fine if he is convicted. He said sentencing and fine structure usually depends on the defendant's background in misdemeanor cases such as this one.

Moses said he has no previous criminal record and hopes the matter will be dropped.

Arsonist believed responsible for Garrapata Canyon blaze

By SUSAN BECK

AN ARSONIST, once again, started a fire that consumed 40 acres from Highway 1 into the Garrapata Canyon area Oct. 4.

By following the burn pattern of the blaze, just south of Carmel Highlands, the California Department of Forestry (CDF) discoverd the origin of the fire, a handmade time-delayed device, said Don Stacy, a CDF fire prevention officer.

"We do not have that many fires. Arson is the main cause of ground fires in the coastal jurisdiction south of Carmel Highlands," said Stacy.

There were two large fires last year on the coast south of Carmel. The Molera fire at the Andrew Molera State Park burned about 300 to 400 acres, and a smaller fire between the state park and the Carmel Highlands destroyed another 100 acres.

Both of thoses fires were started with devices similar to that found at the Garrapata Canyon site, said Stacy. "We believe it is the same person."

The cost to the CDF and the United States Forest Service to fight the Garrapata fire was about $20,000. The fire required the assistance of the Mid-Coast and Carmel Highlands volunteer fire departments, who provided two engines each.

In addition, there were three air tankers for distributing retardents, three helicopters with 385-gallon capacity Bolus Buckets that scooped up ocean water to spray the burning vegetation, two bulldozers, six fire engines, and about 70 firefighters.

Stacy said that it is difficult to determine a specific motive for the coastland arson fires. The most common reasons for arson are revenge, relief from pressure, heroic participation in stopping the fire, and physical pleasure from watching the havoc caused by a blaze.

"Almost all arsonists have a unique characteristic," said Stacy, "they're anti-social." Most of them don't have friends to confide in, so it is not likely that someone would find out about an arson incident from hearsay, said Stacy.

The CDF has a standard public awareness policy that encourages people to be alert to anyone in or around a parked car on the side of the road. Stacy said that usually the situation comes across as, "whoops, something looks wrong."

If this happens, try to get the license plate number and a general discription of the person, said Stacy. Then call either the Monterey County Sheriff's Tip Line, 373-3344, or the CDF, 385-5412.

Should the information lead to an arrest and conviction, the witness is eligible for a reward of up to $5,000. Since 1984, about seven witnesses have received an award for alerting the authorities concerning a suspicious situation, said Stacy.

Last week's arson fire in Garrapata Canyon started about 3 p.m. and burned into the evening. Firefighters stayed at the site all night and the blaze was contained by Friday afternoon.

TWO LOCAL volunteer firefighting companys, Mid-Coast and Carmel Highlands, assisted the California Department of Forestry and the United States Forestry Service at the Garrapata Canyon fire on Oct. 4. (Susan Beck photo.)

An end to an era at CBA with retirement of longtime director

By DAVID LELAND

BERNARD ANDERSON was mayor of Carmel and Jimmy Carter served as U.S. President when Lee Chamberlain took over as executive vice president of the Carmel Business Association in 1974.

Her retirement, effective Oct. 31, marks the end of an era and has CBA officials scrambling for a replacement.

"She's been the guts of the CBA for the past 16 years," said CBA President Kathie Ritter at a recent CBA meeting.

Indeed, Chamberlain has weathered several city administrations and managed to keep the CBA office afloat during lean times.

"We've been operating with almost no money for the past 16 years; we didn't even have a bookkeeper when I took over," she says, adding that in the late '70s she went without a paycheck for two months. "We paid the rent but we didn't get paid."

AFTER SERVING as CBA executive vice president for the past 16 years, Lee Chamberlain will retire effective Oct. 31.

Chamberlain has seen both finances and membership grow during her tenure.

"When I came here we only had 125 members, now we have 440," says Chamberlain, who essentially oversees the small CBA office and its core of volunteers.

Her tasks also entail setting up small conventions, talking to the news media, greeting visitors and working with the CBA Board of Directors.

The cramped upstairs office on San Carlos Street, with its various pamphlets touting the City of Carmel and its environs, has stayed constant during Chamberlain's service.

Communication, a cornerstone of her position, has never been a problem for Chamberlain.

"I'm a people person," she says, adding that she will miss the local merchants and tourists who ask for assistance.

After taking a short vacation to visit relatives, Chamberlain says she will likely look for a part-time job.

"I can't stay home," says Chamberlain, who was widowed shortly after marrying Walter Chamberlain in the '50s. "I wouldn't have made a very good housewife."

Asked of her most exciting memory during the past 16 years and Chamberlain doesn't bat an eye: the Eastwood years.

"He was a very interesting man and a good businessman," she says. "He was fun to talk to because he has a great sense of humor; he was delightful."

HER STINT with the CBA marks the latest chapter in a life dedicated to community service, which began in ernest when she organized the United Way in Fairbanks, Alaska.

During the late '50s, Chamberlain served as president of the Farthest North Girl Scout Council.

In that capacity she worked with Eskimo girls and trained girl scout leaders via radio. She also took Eskimo girls into her home to acquaint them with electricity, autombiles and other modern conventions.

After her husband died, she moved to Seattle and accepted a position as financial advisor on the national staff of Girl Scouts of America.

In 1960, she was given the task of organizing Girl Scouts in Santa Cruz, San Benito and Monterey counties.

After serving as executive director for the Monterey Bay Girl Scout Council for a number of years, Chamberlain took her job with the CBA.

Just as Chamberlain has seen CBA membership soar during the past 16 years, she has also seen familiar faces disappear.

"The biggest change in the business community is the retirement of so many shopkeepers," says Chamberlain, who is listed in Marquis Who's Who of America. "We don't have that many longtime owners."

There was a time, she says, when all a person had to do to stay abreast of the latest gossip was stop into any Carmel shop.

"There was a more homey feeling," says Chamberlain, who grew up in Fargo, N.D. "I think the pace was a little more leisurely than it is now."

But the flip side, Chamberlain says, is the closing of a long-standing gap between the business community and residents.

"I don't see the big division, we have too many residents coming into the office," says Chamberlain, who holds an engineering degree. "That is something that other people see; I don't see it."

'New kid' feels at home at Carmel Valley Library

By SUSAN BECK

GAIL O'BRIEN feels like the new kid on the block.

That's because of her new job as branch manager of the Carmel Valley Library, which she began in February. Since January '89 O'Brien worked part time as the assistant manager of the Seaside branch of the Monterey County Free Libraries system. She started working for the county library system in 1981.

From the beginning, the "new kid" was taken in with open arms by the Carmel Valley community.

"This is a wonderful community to work in. There's a very small closely knit group of people who have lived here a long time and are very supportive of their library," O'Brien said. "They are friendly, neighborly, and it's just a delight to work here."

Her librarian education is specifically in children's library services. She derived tremendous pleasure from sharing books with her children when they were young, and with the inspiration from her sister, she received a masters degree in libraian science from the University of California at Berkeley.

O'Brien's emphasis on children's services is an asset to her new job. She and her assistant, Marci Madsen, wear two hats for the county. The free library system has a team approach: the valley library's manager and assistant both work 20 hours running the branch, and 20 hours each as part of a team to provide youth services for Monterey County.

There is one other half-time staff member. And then there are the volunteers.

"We depend and are extremely grateful to our dedicated group of volunteers who come in regularly," said O'Brien. The volunteers shelve books, keep track of periodicals and magazines, label and file cards, and so on. Most importantly, they help out at the circulation desk.

Volunteers require minimal training, and the Carmel Valley Library is always looking for more people to get involved on a regular basis, said O'Brien.

Volunteers have always been an integral part of the library system in California. In 1912 the first Monterey County library was established by a young woman from Ireland, Ann Haden. She became the first librarian, and with enormous energy and commitment, she established five additional branches within six months of her arrival here.

The first branches were in Greenfield, Spreckels, Salinas, Corral de Tierra, and Lincoln. The Carmel Valley branch started in 1938, and was called the Carmelo Branch for 10 years.

At that time, branches, were "deposit collection" outlets in residents' homes. Volunteers opened the doors of their homes to the county so that others could borrow books, said Robert McElroy, administration service officer for the Monterey County Free Libraries.

In 1949 all the "deposit collection" outlets combined their books to be placed in a shared space with the Carmel Valley Post Office, said McElroy.

The building where the Carmel Valley library is now was once a private residence. It was also the Buckeye Restaurant, and for the past 10 years, people have checked their books out at the "bar," said O'Brien.

'This is a wonderful community to work in. It's a very small closely knit group of people who have lived here a long time and are very supportive of their library.'

The menu includes such intriguing appetizers as roasted poblano pepper stuffed with chicken, raisins, and cheese in a piquant red sauce, cactus salad and a zesty shrimp cocktail to set the mood off right.

For dinner, the black angus steak is juicy and prepared to your liking or try the grilled chicken breasts in chile salsa overflowing with flavor. Feast on a bountiful platter of fresh seafood with plump scallops, prawns, and squid surrounding a whole fresh fish, or perhaps try the excellent grilled prawns with lime butter sauce.

Valley library

Instead of brandy and beer, local residents' now get coffee and tea. The valley library is small, and mostly accommodates popular and recreational reading. However, because it is in the county library system, reference material is available upon request from the other, larger branches, said O'Brien.

The administrative headquarters for the Monterey County Free Libraries is in Salinas, which oversees the 16 branch libraries.

In addition to meeting the reading needs of the Carmel Valley community it is also committed to providing materials in English, Spanish, and other languages.

The Carmel Valley library is very accommodating, said O'Brien, and operates with a very old-fashioned system. Almost anyone can borrow a book as long as they can verify their current permanent address.

It is not even necessary to live in the area. Some people come to visit the Monterey Peninsula and with proof of residence, they can check out a book, said O'Brien.

The valley library gets an interesting blend of people. It seems that there are a lot of mystery readers, numerous retired residents and a surprising amount of young couples who bring their pre-school children in for books, said O'Brien.

There will be pre-school programs, such as story times, this autumn. Also, there will be special events relating to the holidays, all involving books and music reflecting the time.

Monies to provide the library service come from the county. McElroy estimates that the valley branch has a fiscal year budget of $200,000 that pays for staff salaries, rent, building maintenance, and utilities.

The county library system has a book budget that purchases multiple copies of books that are distributed to the various branches. The Carmel Valley Library has about 26,750 books.

The valley library also gets financial assistance from donations by local civic groups. Members of Friends of the Library have funded the landscaping, maintenance, and furniture for the library's patio, and most of the amenities, such as paintings and decorations, said O'Brien.

Friends of the Library also meet every other Friday from 2:30 to 4 p.m. for presentations and discussions about books, in which the public is invited to participate. (For more information about volunteering, programs or library hours, call 659-2377.)

O'Brien often participates in the book discussion sessions and other activities at the library because she enjoys being involved. She said she likes everything about her new job, including the library building.

"In the winter there is a cozy fireplace with comfortable chairs to sit in and read, and then in the summer, it's cool because the library is made of adobe," said O'Brien.

It appears the new kid on the block has found a home.

"It still feels like a new job, and I am really happy to be here."

Fire warning posted at Mission Trail Park

CARMEL'S MISSION Trail Park has been posted for no open fires, barbecues of smoking during this period of hot weather and extremely high fire hazard.

Carmel Fire Chief Bill Hill announced that the ban on smoking and open fires in the park will continue for as long as the weather remains seasonably warm. The wildland fire in Pebble Beach on Monday was a reminder of how vulnerable the Monterey Peninsula is to wildland fires in this fourth year of the drought, Hill said.

Anyone noting violations in the park should contact the Carmel Police Department or Carmel Fire Department.

CARMEL... AS I SEE IT

By Betty Barron

Talking trees? Counting trees?

I'VE HEARD the estimates of the number of trees to go when Hatton Canyon roadway is a reality. (Not counting, I'm certain, the dead trees, the prone and "petrified" trees that cascade down the canyon.)

But, how many will be cut down if we widen Highway 1?

I counted along just 100 yards on the west side of the road...and it was 48 trees!

Included in this little strip of the road was a new house set back about 75 yards and almost finished. To protect their home from noise and whizzing cars, the owners have thrown up a barrier. An earth embankment towering 8-feet high now runs along the rim of the property...along the road. I presume that it will be grass-covered, or planted...or perhaps will be cemented and topped with a fence. Whatever, it is a variation of an ancient moat, or a fortification such as the hill forts of pre-history. But, this is 1990! Should homeowners have to do this to protect themselves from the invasion of a mobile society?

The San Francisco peninsula has a more substantial solution. Perhaps we should follow their plan. Highway 101 has been lined on both sides with 10 to 12-foot walls...something of a prison effect. Is this what we want on the Monterey Peninsula, a tunneled highway, rimmed on both sides with high stone walls, not only destroying our beautiful trees but the view of the mountains, sky, even the birds! If a scenic road is what we value, save the trees and foliage along Highway 1, and the California poppies and lovely climbing nasturtiums. Yes, save the road, as it is.

Will Ocean Avenue be the next target of the "Wideners"

Will our little road down the hill on Ocean soon be "too narrow," "too clogged with cars"...so that it must be widened, encroaching on the homes and hotels with their colorful gardens?

Will Junipero also soon be deemed too narrow for the tour buses. Will the stately trees on Junipero divider between Ocean Avenue and 12th be cut down to make a speedway to Rio Road?

And, then there is Carpenter? Won't that be the next Carmel Road to be widened so that the spin-off to Junipero can move faster and freer?

Save the two-lane roadway of Highway 1. Keep our village safe from heavy traffic by detouring the flow down through Hatton Canyon, which is a natural "tunnel," or funnel, if you will...to Carmel Valley.

Measure N

IN MANY ways, Measure N closely resembles state Proposition 70, which provides money for acquisition of scenic properties in Big Sur.

"Proposition 70 could easily be a prototype," said Strasser Kauffman, adding that the county has successfuly bought four separate "critical viewshed properties" under the measure. "The park district would be well-guided to use Proposition 70 – they may want to adopt similar guidelines."

Under Proposition 70, a property must be "buildable" under county guidelines before it can be purchased. Point Lobos falls outside of Propostions 70's boundaries, which end south of Yankee Point.

Under Propostion 70, owners approach the county with a parcel, the land is assessed and then a deal is made. "Each owner has been satisfied," Strasser Kauffman said.

In addition to the possible purchase of land slated for Point Lobos Ranch, a commercial enterprise allowed under the Carmel Area Land Use Plan, Strasser Kauffman said the Odello land may be purchased.

The Odellos are currently proposing 76 lots on their land south of the Carmel River.

"It (the purchase under Measure N) would avoid numerous traffic hassles and water issues," she said. "It gives us another option. It would be a very simple solution to a long-standing problem."

But Strasser Kauffman said she is well aware that the county cannot ride roughshod over those that wish to build.

"I recognize that property owners have property rights," she said.

SMALL POX STATISTICS
ONE POSSIBLE INFLUENCE

A prominent Carmel physician requests publication of the following article, with the above caption, in the Pine Cone. It is from the Medical News, and is presented as news matter only. The article refers to a certain magazine, and continues as follows:

"Departing from their peculiar field of exaltation of the physical body, they discourse rabidly on immunity and biology. Their readers are no doubt influenced to oppose or to remain indifferent to vaccination of their children. Indeed, some offer as reasons only that 'the leading physical cultural magazines are opposed to it.' The results of such propaganda are apparent in our smallpox morbidity.

LONG DRESSES NOW ABOUND

Teen-age lasses seem to be in revolt against the shorts, jeans and stretch pants era, at least judging by those I've seen in my jaunts through the trees. Nowadays, they are wearing long dresses with a distinct Jane Austen influence. I wonder if they'll take up the bonnets of that time, too?

Jane might be a little surprised to see what has happened to the world since her time but I'm sure she'd find that young ladies still have the same interests, basically young men and parties – if her spirit should visit our village and she could hear above the loud din of present day popular music.

Maybe, though, she'd just happen to cut in on some of those long telephone calls and have enough material, in no time, for another novel.

COUNCIL TO FACE TEEN CURFEW ONCE AGAIN

Curfews for persons 17 and younger will again be discussed by the Carmel City Council when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 13, in City Hall.

The issue was raised and adopted at the first council meeting in September, then rescinded at the next session. The council squelched the curfew ordinance during the second reading with a 2-2 vote, with Councilmen Helen Arnold and Howard Brunn opposed. Frank Lloyd was absent.

City Administer Doug Peterson said the council wanted to re-introduce the measure when all members were present.

Lloyd indicated he would prefer to see the issue continued and used later if needed. "My original feeling was that it is an ordinance to protect the innocent who may go along with the crowd," he said.

The curfew ordinance would prohibit loitering and wandering by persons younger than 18 in any public place after 11 p.m., in line with other ordinances recently adopted by Peninsula cities and Monterey County.

Peterson said at the second September meeting, "There's no grand program of sweeping the area where there's youth assembling."

However, Brunn remarked: "I'm not at all impressed the other areas have it. I'm not going to vote for it."

Brunn and Mrs. Arnold agreed that it was an unwarranted restriction against youths.

Big Sur group blast
Big Sur Parkway

A Big Sur activist group plans to head off any attempts by the federal government to turn Highway 1 from Carmel to Morro Bay into a "Big Sur National Parkway" similar to the Blue Ridge Parkway in Virginia and North Carolina.

The friends of the Big Sur Coast held a press conference Oct. 7 to reveal its plans to ask William Penn Mott, new director of the National Park Service, to drop his proposals to turn the highway into a federal parkway. Mott has said in a recent interview that a so-called Big Sur Parkway would make Highway 1 "as exciting and important as the Blue Ridge Parkway," which is a federally regulated highway that winds its way across the top of a mountain range stretching from Virginia to North Carolina. of the proposed parkway, especially Carmel and the Monterey Peninsula and Morro Bay and San Luis Obisbo.

CYC NOTES

Adults at play

THE CARMEL Youth Center was overrun this past weekend by adults.

We had our annual fund-raiser on Friday night. It was a successful party since it did raise money for the center. We would like to thank those who were in attendance for their generous contributions.

In case the society reporter missed some of the events that took place we'll try to fill in some information. People arrived, people talked, people drank, people ate and people danced. We talked to a lot of people at the party, but we can't remember what they said. We also didn't notice what anyone was wearing although some of the women were wearing make-up – didn't notice if any of the men were wearing any though. It did take place at night since it was dark.

There were some local celebrities in attendance but we can't remember their names. Also some local television stations covered the event but we don't remember which ones. That about covers it. We hope next year's fund-raiser will be just as exciting, that is, if we are invited.

Now for a real party, our annual Halloween party taking place on Saturday, Oct. 27. The party is for fourth, fifth, and sixth-graders and starts at 7 p.m. and ends at 9 p.m. Tickets are $2 if you come in costume, $3 if not.

We still have our Pickleball court set up in the gym. Coming soon is a championship match between the old man and the kid. Tickets will go on sale soon. He dudes, we've got surf movies on Wednesday afternoons at 3 p.m. Check it out.

Our weight room is in full swing now in case you need to get in shape for a winter sport. The price is only $10 a month. Not a bad deal for using a state-of-the-art weight room and instruction by a nationally certified fitness instructor. Adult classes will be starting in November. Call or stop by for information.

Youth center hours are Monday through Friday, 3 to 8 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday noon to 6 p.m. Our phone number is 624-3285 and we are located at Fourth and Torres next to the police station.

Crisis Line volunteers sought

Volunteers are needed to staff the crisis lines of the Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center of Monterey County.

Individuals who are calm, competent, good listeners and supportive will be trained during a 40-hour program.

Orientation for the next class will take place 7 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 15.

After completing the training, volunteers are asked to donate a four-hour shift per week to the Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center for a period of one year.

For more information, call the office line, 375-6966, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Legal Services for Seniors moves

Legal Services for Seniors, a non-profit organization providing free legal services to low income seniors in Monterey County, has relocated its Monterey Peninsula office.

The office is now located at 413 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove, in a restored Victorian home, one-half block up from Pine Avenue. Bus transportation will bring clients within a block of the office.

The new location will be open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and is staffed by four legal advocates. Appointments are necessary. For more information, call 372-3989.

COMING OF AGE

By Jennifer Dyer

Slanguage

HAVE YOU ever been in another country where few people seem to be speaking your language? Walking to class this week, I strolled past a knot of teenagers and just caught a window of their conversation. The experience went something like this:

"Dude – I got dogged by that dish and now I'm bent. I can't hang with that. I'm stressin'."

"Not – save it – you're psyched to lose her, now you're free to kick back and hang loose. You're stoked."

Does it sometimes feel like communicating with a teenager is like asking for directions on Mars? Each generation enjoys its own particular flavor of English, words that are coined or recycled each year, kind of like Baskin-Robbins' 31 different varieties of ice cream.

Whatever generation you belong to, whether you were the "cat's meow," enjoyed "hanging 10," or "making peace with your brother," you surely had a different vocabulary than your parents. Were you "peachy keen" or "really cool, man?" Did you "make love," and "not make war?" The point is that whether you "petted," "necked," "made out," "got together," or just plain "kissed," each period of time had its own special set of words and phrases, their own particular Webster of "slanguage."

The '90s are no exception. Although at times it may seem as if teenagers speak in tongues, the words we use are just new variations of old ones. Here's a handy set of definitions so you can find out "what the scoop" is.

Dude: a greeting, used as an exclamation or noun. "Dude! I aced my Economics quiz!" "Where did that dude put my tennis racket?"

Dog (hard): general term for being mistreated, usually in a humorous or romantic sense. "Mr. Lincoln dogged me in fourth period today when he caught me napping." "Jill dogged me hard when she broke up with me to go out with Jack."

Dish: a really attractive person. "What a dish!" (This word is recycled from the '40s, when a dish was a "peachy keen" person.)

Bent: very angry or upset, usually used to describe one's parents. "Dude, my parents got fully bent when they saw my progress reports!"

Deal: understand, work with, accept. "I can't deal with the meaning of pi." "Ted can't deal with his new boss." "I can't deal with another D- in Physics."

Hang: another word for deal. "I can't hang with my little sister!"

Stressin': worrying. "Stop stressin' about DiStefano's Trig test. You're going to fail it anyway."

Key: great, wonderful, in a sarcastic sense. "Dude, I failed Fletch's bird quiz. Key."

Not: no way; used as an exclamation. "Lend you two dollars? Not!"

Save it: be quiet. "Save it! I did not read Don Quixote for pleasure! I read it because Walch assigned it in World Lit AP!"

Psyched: happy, excited. "I'm psyched about my 'A' on my Spanish quiz!" "Bob and Phyllis are psyched about going to the Frank Sinatra concert on Friday."

Stoked: psyched. "Stoked! We beat RLS Saturday!"

Kick back: relax. "Let's kick back at the beach after school."

Chill (out): kick back. "Chill – life does not begin or end with school."

What's the scoop?: what's happening? "What's the scoop? Are we going to see Pacific Heights, the Exorcist 2, or Brimming Buckets of Baleful Blood?"

At times it may seem as if teenagers are speaking some foreign language. Yet sifting through the slang reveals exuberant and animated conversations, sprinkled with big words and colorful images. Language is the one thing all humans have in common, no mattter what age, race, or creed. Words know no limits, and communication is the key to understanding between mankind.

Monterey County Social Services Adoption Unit will conduct orientation for families interested in adopting children of all ages.

The meeting is set 3 to 5 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 17 at the Quadrangle, 1000 S. Main St., Salinas, in the United Way office. Also needed are minority families as well as families interested in providing foster care that may lead to adoption. For details, call 755-4660.

Softball at Sunset

THIS IS the 40th anniversary of the Carmel Youth Center and we asked a few local alumni to look back and share some memories of the founding of the center with us. It should not come as a surprise that two names stand out: Jack and Bonnie Giles.

Donna Douglas Bufa, Carmel High class of '51 sets the scene. "In the summer all the kids in town would play softball at Sunset Field. Jack Giles coached both the boys' and girls' teams and when the news about the youth center came out, Jack and Bonnie were the most logical couple in Carmel to run it. They were so involved with us kids."

Coach Giles remembers Donna as "the best arm in Carmel." Which may or not have anything to do with the fact that Mike Aldrete, Donna's son, plays first base for the Montreal Expos.

Jack and Bonnie were the first directors of the Carmel Youth Center. Living now in Healdsburg, near Santa Rosa, they remember the '50s like it was yesterday.

"Jack coached a lot and Bing used to come and watch the kids' softball games at Sunset Field," Bonnie recalled. "One day Jack read in the paper that he had been appointed director of the new youth center that was going to be built."

Ray A. March, Carmel High class of '53 and former president of the youth center, was a freshman at Carmel High School when construction began.

"Coach Mosolf would take the last period boys' PE class down to the youth center when it was being built and put us to work cleaning up for the construction crew. After the center opened, Jack played a mean game of hearts, but it was Bonnie who kept us all in line."

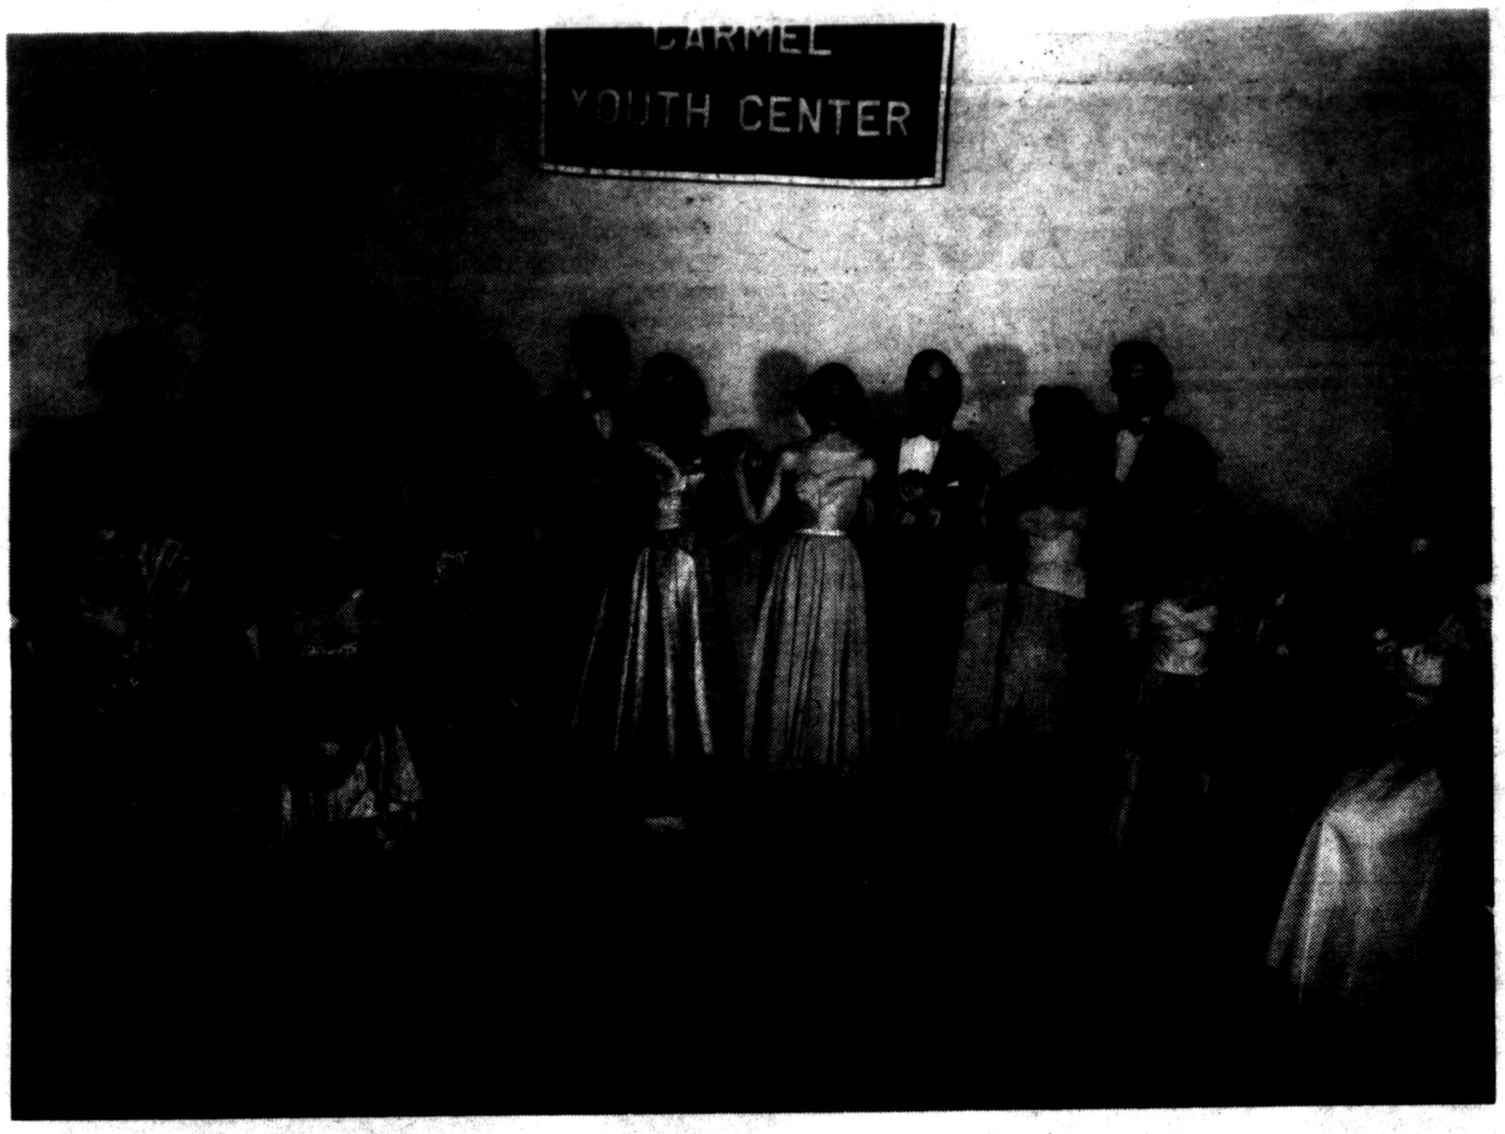
Jack and Bonnie proudly say, "The whole town pitched in to build the youth center. Plumbers, electricians and carpenters would arrive at 5 o'clock after they got off work to help out. Mayor Godwin provided sandwiches. There wasn't a kid in Carmel who didn't work on the youth center.

"Bing contributed a complete sound system to the center and costumes from his movies to the Youth Follies in addition to the funds that were raised through the Crosby Tournament. He was so marvelous, we can't begin to tell you."

Bing Crosby provided the inspiration and financial support in those early days and Clint Eastwood has done the same in recent years to bring the Carmel Youth Center back to life."

At the "Pink Cadillac Party," held Friday night at the center, current board chairwoman Ave Lallos told us what Clint has done for the young people of Carmel. Her comments were reminiscent of the admiration the Giles' expressed about Crosby's contributions 40 years ago.

"When Clint became mayor he asked what had happened to the youth center that Bing Crosby started. The center was dead and through Clint's support and fund-raisers like this one we've accomplished three of our four goals. First were the hidden improvements like wiring, plumbing and a new roof, then a weight room and most recently the snack bar and a TV room. Next on our list are improvements to the all-purpose room, including a new ceiling."



CIRCA 1952 Carmel Youth Center members pose in formal dress for the Youth Follies dance routine "Slow Poke." Costumes were from the Bing Crosby movie Somebody Loves Me.

CONGRATULATIONS TO new parents, Highlands Inn Executive Chef Brian Whitmer and wife Tracy. Their first child, a daughter, Claire Marie, was born at Community Hospital on Oct. 2.

Let's hope that Chef Whitmer, who once said, "Great meals are usually a lot easier to make than people think," will be putting his philosophy into practice at home as he pitches in, preparing meals for the family.

We'll all get a chance to learn the secret to great, easy meals starting in December. Whitmer will be teaching a series of six hands-on cooking classes which will continue monthly until May. The series begins on Dec. 11 with "An Elegant New Year's Eve Dinner." Call Highlands Inn at 624-3801 for information.

A recent appearance of Susan Catlin of San Francisco and Pebble Beach and her father, Dick, at a community fund-raiser brought back memories of tennis at The Beach & Tennis Club. The Catlin family, including brother Dickie (now Richard), was one of the tennis powers of the late '60s.

Pebble Beach Fallout

THINK OF the restoration project currently underway at Pebble Beach Golf Links as a chemical peel and it makes all the sense in the world. After all, the grand dame is 71 years old!

Prospective brides and their parents who've reserved the idyllic setting between the 18th fairway and The Lodge for the ceremony or reception aren't seeing any humor in the dead patches of turf. Not when the price tag for a wedding on the Pebble Beach Golf Links is reportedly $10,000.

HOW TO beat the system. If you're disappointed because you weren't invited to play in the AT&T Pro-Am this year, consider this. First-come, first-served can play the best threesome in golf, Pebble, Spyglass and Spanish Bay, by making a reservation for the Bobby Jones Father/Son Team Classic. This tournament is a chance to play where the pros can't. Bridesmaid Poppy Hills is not included.

IS IT just too obvious, or what? We keep looking for some golf writer or other journalistic wit to comment on history's repeating itself at Pebble Beach.

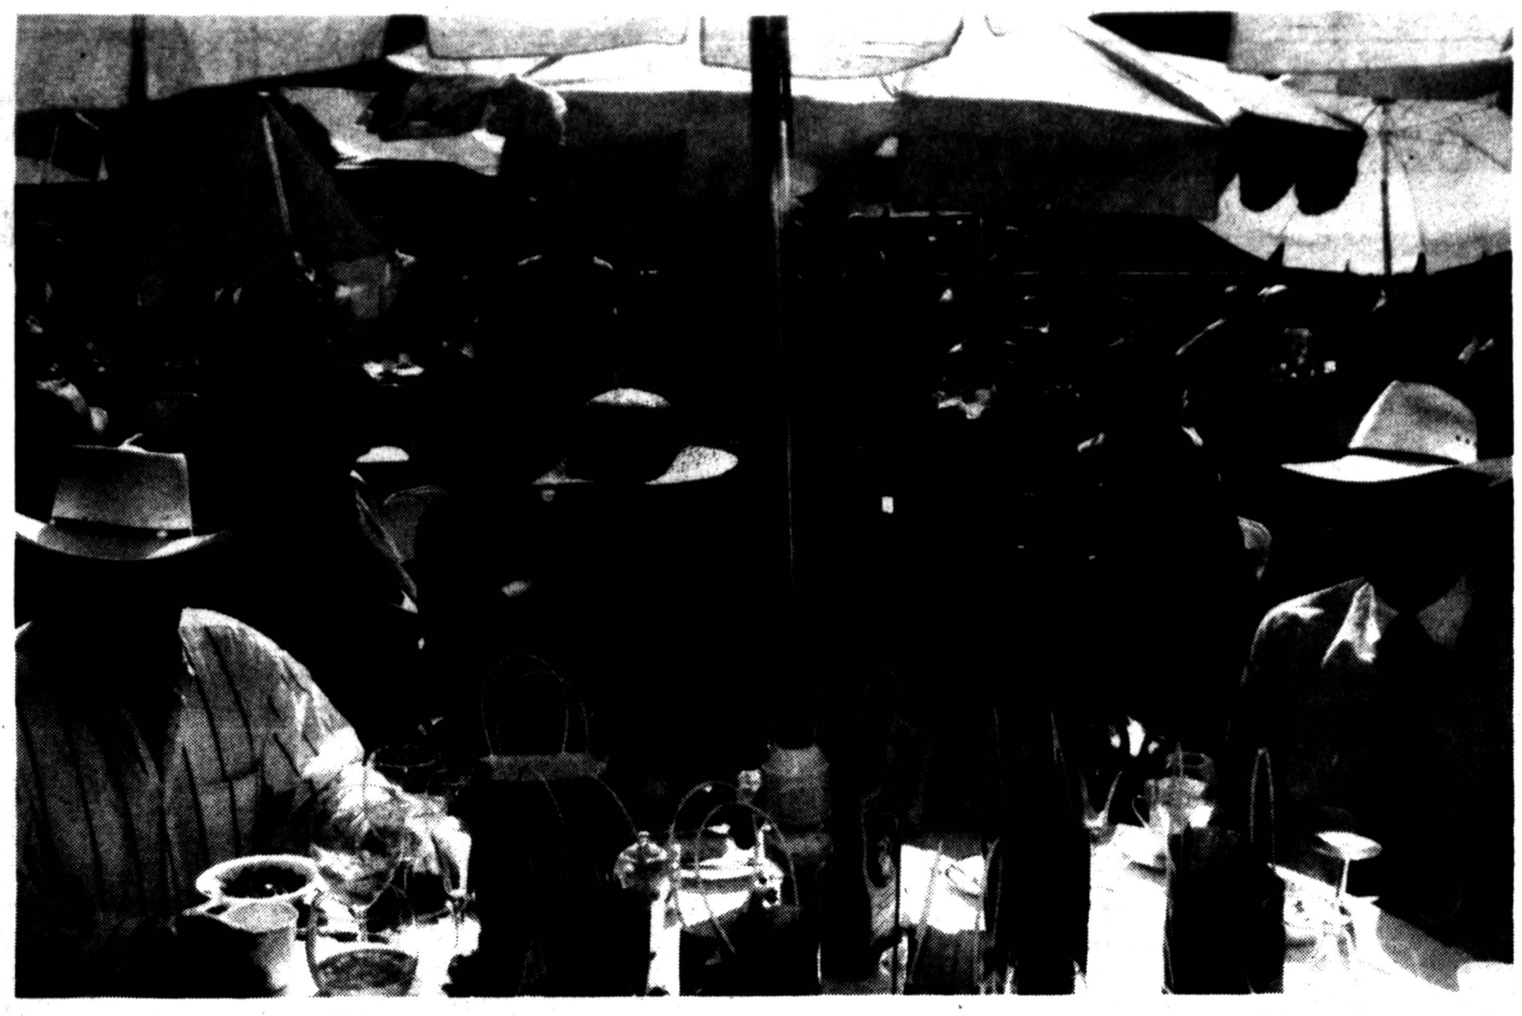
Garden Party

GILBERT, BOOKER, and the rest of the gang from the SPCA, were sorry their friend Doris didn't attend the swell party the Humane Society threw at Carmel Valley Country Club last Sunday, but they had a great time anyway. So much green grass!

A sparkling October day made everyone mellow. At least six of the pets that attended werre adopted by new owners and everyone enjoyed fashions from Benetton, Laura Ashley, Talbot's, Bib n' Tucker, Saks Fifth Avenue, Vendetti and R.K. Shugart.

Rita Shugart was high bidder and took home the original Will Bullas painting titled, "That's What Friends Are For," as a companion piece to the Bullas painting she picked up at last year's event.



THE SUN brought out the hats at Carmel Valley Country Club for the SPCA Garden Party. Tom McCullough, Mrs. Nicolas Hahn, Mrs. Sharon Johnston and Nicolas Hahn (left to right).

Ironies and Intrigues

LISTEN UP Marvin Davis. What goes around, comes around. Watch for an announcement from the Golf Division at Pebble Beach that Karen Hunter, former vice-president of marketing for the company, has signed on as a consultant to pick up where she left off last April, continuing her work on the 1992 U.S. Open.

AN OLDTIMER at the "Pink Cadillac Party" at the Carmel Youth Center commenting on the new improvements and the scene in general, "This is more 50s than the 50s."

ALWAYS QUIT when you're ahead. Spoiled by success and national press attention, the Lone Bonsai phantom is contemplating a new Pebble Beach prank. Michael Zaouk of Club XIX, be advised to keep those leather-bound menus under lock and key. An unauthorized Japanese version of your menu insert is due off the presses any day now.

Personal Symbols

ARTISTS ARE inspired by anything and everything and the new show at the Pacific Grove Art Center proves that.

Lighthouses, old churches, James Dean, chess, teapots and a life-size piece titled, "Party Girl Walks the Dogs," have special meaning to the artists: Doris F. Dyson, Joseph Schuett, Laurel Paley, Diane Levinson, and Jef Workman.

The art community turned out as usual to congratulate their friends and discuss a new event for artists, "Monterey Bay Artist's Day." Peninsula art organizations are sponsoring a day-long session at MPC on Saturday, Oct. 20 that includes slide presentations, lectures, guest speakers, workshops and a noontime event described as a "field of multi-colored sculpture, combined with the festive pageantry of a soap box derby and the surrealism of an artists' Concour d'Elegance." And you thought Dream Cars at last year's Pebble Beach Concours were outrageous! Call Robert Reese at 624-7491 for details.

PG Barnfest

IT WAS a country kind of evening Sunday at the Pacific Grove Community Center when the Jesters held their Barnfest.

Tri-tip barbecue, and homemade desserts along with an auction and fun and games, including calf roping, made it a pleasant evening for the gathering of over 100.

Calf roping in Pacific Grove! You'll have to ask one of the members of the group for the details on this event. All we can say is that the SPCA would have approved.

Watch out

IF A Louisiana alligator hunt is on your husband or wife's Christmas list, be sure to attend the Santa Catalina Wine Tasting and Auction, Saturday, Oct. 13 at Santa Catalina School. The alligator hunt, along with an exceptional selection of fine wines and other items, will go to the highest bidder starting at 8 p.m. in Santo Doningo Hall.

"Le Masquerade" a song and dance troupe that turns ordinary events into unforgettable parties, is scheduled to appear at the Phantasy Ball, benefitting Natividad Medical Center, Oct. 20 at The Golf Club at Quail Lodge. Ordinary events into unforgettable parties? Imagine the possibilities. Washing the dog, shopping for groceries, paying bills!

Word is leaking out. Nov. 20 is the date. Cannery Row is the location. Carmel is the theme. More clues later.

Varsity Football

After five weeks into the 1990 football season, Carmel remains undefeated. The Padres shut out Robert Louis Stevenson at Pebble Beach last Saturday (10/6) with a score of 26-0. Tobin Leslie and Mark Fanderl each had close to 100 yards rushing while Mario Bertolucci continued his fine play at quarterback by completing 60 percent of his passes for a total of 140 yards.

George Macaluso had a fantastic game, making some crucial tackles on an amazing goal-line stand in the second quarter. He also made two key interceptions and handled all the kicking chores late into the game.

Solid defense coupled with crisp execution on offense has the Padres poised for some crucial games in the next few weeks.

The Padres travel to Gonzales High School Friday (10/12). Game times are 3:45 p.m. (F), 5:45 p.m. (JV), and 8 p.m. (V).

JV Football

The Padre junior varsity team played a frosh-soph game against RLS on Saturday (10/6) and came up winners 28-8. As a frosh/soph game, juniors on the team were excluded from the contest. This affected six players who traditionally move up to varsity during such weeks.

Carmel came from behind in a rough-and-tumble game. Donovan McComb scored two touchdowns, Sean Boehje scored one as did John Tedrow. Substitute center Cho Prassert played very well. Quarterback Matt Travaille completed nine of 16 passes. Defensive standouts included Jeff Saunders, Anthony Herro, Kyle Koontz and Rich Simmons for terrific blocking.

On Friday (10/12) they travel to Gonzales to face perhaps the best JV defensive team in the league. The Padres will challenge themselves against a team which shutdown the Palma offense. Game time is 5:45 p.m. at Gonzales High School.

Frosh Football

Carmel's freshman lost to a powerful Hollister team on Thursday (10/4) at the CHS home field. Outnumbered and out-experienced, the freshman continue to show improvement in skills and soon hope to reflect more of this in their scores. Coach Ables praised Padres Chris Bleich, Pete Jepson, Evi Plata, Larry Brooks, Louis Dillard, Mike Fusion, and Sam Melton for their fine play.

Volleyball

Carmel's volleyball teams were defeated this past week by Gonzales and Santa Catalina. The losses dropped Carmel's record to 1-4 in MTAL league play. The Padres fought hard in each contest before falling in five games.

At Gonzales, Carmel was led by the serving of Jenny Dyer and the backcourt and front line play of Amy Gray. Strong contributions against Santa Catalina were turned in by Holly Morse, Amy Gray, Marini Marasco, and Jodi Miller. Carmel's frosh/soph team was lead by Sara Swarts and Jennifer Forlizzo.

This week's contest have Carmel playing Pacific Grove at home on Tuesday and at RLS on Thursday. Admission to CHS home games is free.

Swimming and Diving

The girls of Carmel's swimming and diving team improved their record to 3-0 after two meets last week when they hosted Salinas on Tuesday (10/2) and North Salinas on Thursday (10/4). Salinas fell to the Padres 110-75. Double event winners for Carmel were junior and team co-captain Cristin Clack in the 200 yard individual medley and 100 backstroke and freshman Tisha Satow in the 50 freestyle and 500 freestyle. The junior varsity won 116-55 and were paced by double-event winner Kim Kurz in the 100 individual medley and 200 freestyle.

Against North Salinas, Carmel won 138-57, scoring first in 10 of 12 events. The JV squad won 139-52. Varsity double winners for the Padres were Cristin Clack in the 100 butterfly and 100 backstroke, Erica Murray in the 500 freestyle and 100 breaststroke, and Tisha Satow in the 50 and 100 freestyle events. Each of Tisha's times this week qualified her for the CCS Championship meet at the end of the season at Stanford University. To date this freshman swimmer has qualified for CCS in each event entered this year. Additionally, she was honored Wednesday (10/10) as KMST-TV's "Athlete of the Week."

On Saturday (10/6) a smaller squad represented Carmel at the 10th annual St. Francis Swimming Invitational in Mountain View. This event features some of the best teams in CCS including the first and second place CCS teams. Carmel placed as high as sixth in relay events and Tisha Satow won third in the 200 backstroke.

Carmel hosts Santa Catalina School on Wednesday (10/10), then faces one of its toughest opponents Tuesday (10/16) as they host Live Oak High School followed on Thursday (10/18) by Gilroy High. Both meets begin at 3:30 p.m.

Cross Country

Carmel High runners saw action twice last week. First in a tri-meet at Robert Louis Stevenson School against RLS and King City. Carmel lost its meet with King City (24-31 points – lowest score wins), but won its meet with RLS (23-34). Padre runner Will Allan won overall with a time of 16:46 for the three mile course. On Saturday (10/6) part of the team traveled to Stanford University for the Stanford Invitational. CHS placed sixth out of 21 schools. Will Allan took eighth place overall with a time of 17:04 on the five km course. The meet course was at Stanford golf course where contestants could watch runners, including top college and university runners and Olympic trial hopefuls, in subsequent races.

Carmel hosts a quad-meet at Garland Park with Gonzales, Notre Dame, and Palma High School. The meet begins at 3:30 p.m.

LIFE PREPAREDNESS TOPIC AT WAVES SPEAKER

The next luncheon meeting of the SEA OTTER WAVES Unit No. 24 of WAVES National will be Saturday Oct. 13, at the Crazy Horse Restaurant, Ramada Inn, Monterey at 11:30.

Featured speaker will be Sharon A. Farr, who is a financial services consultant for the Pacific Western Bank. Her subject will be a discussion of "Life Preparedness" when dealing with the Durable Power of Attorney in Health Care and for Assets. Farr has been teaching a six-week class dealing with the financial and emotional aspects of being widowed sponsored by Carmel Community Hospital.

Unit President Lois Richard will introduce visitor Mary Bauer, state representative for WAVES National, who will provide information about the organization's plans for the year.

Unit members have received word that Bernice Smith Tongate, model for a popular World War I recruiting poster by Howard Chandler Christy died recently in Resil, Wash. Bernice Smith was a young girl of 20 when she announced to Navy recruiters, "Gee!! I wish I were a man. I'd join the Navy" Her family had served in every war since the American Revolution, but there were no young men in the family eligible for WWI. Chisty overheard her exclamation and was inspired to draw the now-famous poster. Ten days after posing, Miss Smith got her wish. She enlisted as a Navy Yeoman (F) for three years and made the rank of chief yeoman. She was the first woman in California to enlist. When the Navy said she was too old to enlist in World War II, she joined the Army.

Reservations and information may be obtained from Lois Richards in Pacific Grove or Blanche De Puy, Carmel.

MIDDLE EAST PEACE TOPIC OF LECTURE

"Prospects for Peace in the Middle East" will be the topic for Havi Scheindlin of Americans for Peace Now at the next New Forum luncheon in the Lodge at Pebble Beach Monday, Oct. 15.

Scheindlin is chairwoman of the organization, which is affiliated with Israel's largest peace group, Shalom Achshaw – Peace Now. After Anwar Sadat's visit to Jerusalem in 1978, Shalom Achshav organized a mass demonstration of 100,000 calling on the Israeli government to pursue peace with Egypt.

When Israeli troops invaded Lebanon, Shalom Achshav organized an even bigger demonstration – 400,000, 13 percent of Israel's population, demanding withdrawal from Lebanon.

Scheindlin is expected to discuss the current military crisis in Kuwait, with emphasis on the long-lasting Palestinian problem and on Israel's security.

She will also discuss Jewish settlement in the occupied territories, which is opposed by the Israeli Peace Now organization, and what is needed to establish a Palestinian state.

After earning a political science degree at the University of Florida, she became director of the Commission on Soviet Jewry and served on the Community Relations Committee of the Jewish Federation Council of Greater Los Angeles.

In the late '70s, she negotiated successfully for Jewish emigration rights in the Soviet Union. To do this, she traveled to meet Jewish groups in the Soviet Union, and spoke widely in both Israel and the United States.

From 1983 to 1989, Ms. Scheindlin served as political director and campaign manager for California Assemblyman Tom Hayden. She also found time to coordinate a three-year project to bring together leaders of Israel and black South Africa.

Recently, she worked at the Brandeis-Bardin Institute and published an art book titled Through the Eyes of Brandeis-Bardin: Reflections of a Jewish World.

Reservations for the Oct. 15 luncheon can be made by calling 625-9967 or writing P.O. Box 22214, Carmel 93922.

BARRACUDAS HIRE NEW HEAD COACH

He was also on the Organizing Committee when Pensacola hosted the 1989 Junio Olympic-East Swimming Championships. Prior to that, he was assistant coach of both the Men's and Women's teams at Yale University.

Personally, Countryman was captain of the Men's Swim Team while earning his bachelor's degree in economics at Harvard University. FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Remember who's captain

From the Oct. 14, 1982
Carmel Pine Cone

Rufus Jones tells us this old story. During a violent storm at sea, a young boy was playing in the passenger lounge. The ship gave a tremendous lurch and someone asked the lad if he was afraid. "Of course not," the lad answered. "My father is the captain of this ship."

During the London blitz in World War II, an old Cockney woman was asked how she stood the bombing in such bravery. She replied: "Every night I say my prayers and then I remember that the bible says God is always watching, so I go to sleep. After all, there is no need for both of us to lie awake."

Oh Lord, help us to remember that you are the captain of our ship and also help us to realize that you are always watching over us in calm and in storm, in peace and in peril. It's not much of a compliment to you if we worry, is it? Amen.

Is brotherhood out of style?

Your children are invited to learn what the Bible teaches about the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man in the Christian Science Sunday School.

Any young person up to the age of twenty is welcome to visit or enroll.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Lillian Files, of Tyngsboro, Massachusetts, now in her mid-60s, had been seeing bluebirds on her wooded property since 1949 "and thought they were commonplace." In 1979, a visiting birdwatcher friend spotted a bluebird there and Files learned that her woodlot was a rare haven for a dwindling species. Files set out to give remaining bluebirds a better chance. She built nesting boxes, wrote brochures and spoke to groups to get others to do the same. In 1984, she was elected president of the North American Bluebird Society. Through her efforts, hundreds of nesting boxes now are in place in New England, and Files monitors 114 of them herself. Result: Sightings of the bluebirds have increased markedly in New England and Canada. "A big comeback," Files says.

As a child she was told by a therapist that she would never be able to accomplish much and "just go home and be a good girl." Now 99, she still lives in the Yonkers, New York, home her family bought in 1903. But the therapist was wrong. The "good little girl" went on to college and then to medical school, enjoyed a career as an epidemiologist, and has made three trips around the world.

Memorabilia pays tribute to Carmel writers

By ANNE PAPINEAU

AN ENCOUNTER with cow skulls, abalone shells and other artifacts representative of Carmel's early writers' colony, is now possible for visitors to the Harrison Memorial Library Park Branch.

Two Carmelites who helped cement the town's reputation as a haven for authors are paid tribute at the Park Branch, located at Mission and Sixth in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Tributes to Mary Austin and George Sterling share the display cases in the lobby of the library. The elements of the exhibit have been compiled over a period of years by Linda Coppens, archivist, with help from Nancy Ochs, assistant archivist.

'Nancy (Ochs) spent hours and hours tracking down cow skulls. Then her good husband carefully installed them here.'
— Linda Coppens

The display harkens back to Carmel circa 1906-1910, admittedly a brief span, but a time when such writers as Jack London, Jimmy Hopper, Austin and Sterling made the village their home.

"I think it must have been a wonderful life for the writers then," Coppens observed. "They didn't have to keep a job. Only Austin and Hopper were really selling articles. Life was inexpensive, fish was free. Sterling had a gun. They'd shoot quail, pheasant. So much of the food was free.

"Their life was pleasant. They'd write in the mornings and in the afternoons go to Point Lobos and have picnics."

Mary Austin was a prolific, much-published Carmel author who wrote poetry, fiction, nonfiction and even plays. Among her books are The Land of Little Rain, A Woman of Genius, The Land of Journey's Ending and an autobiography, Earth Horizon. One of her plays, The Arrow-Maker, was staged in New York.

ARCHIVIST LINDA Coppens employed a variety of elements, including original letters, vintage photographs and cow skulls, for an exhibit that pays tribute to Carmel authors Mary Austin and George Sterling. Assistant archivist Nancy Ochs also contributed to the display. Many of the materials in the showcases were donated to Harrison Memorial Library in 1988 by James Henry, a former California resident who now makes his home in Oregon. Henry collected dozens of items relating to the life of George Sterling. (Anne Papineau photograph).

According to Coppens, George Sterling was "the dramatic spirit who urged the group."

The display includes original copies of several of Sterling's books of poetry, among them, The Caged Eagle and Other Poems, The Testing of the Stars and Other Poems, and The House of Orchids.

Much of this collection was donated by James Henry, a former California resident and George Sterling enthusiast who now makes his home in Oregon. He gave his collection of articles, photographs, books, pamphlets and other Sterling memorabilia to the library in 1988.

Also in Sterling's honor, the library exhibit is decorated with cow skulls and tree branches.

"Nancy spent hours and hours tracking down cow skulls," Coppens quipped. "Then her good husband carefully installed them here."

Side by side with the skulls and branches are vintage photographs of the "altar" that Sterling himself constructed in Carmel using those materials.

The display also includes a copy of "The Abalone Song," a multi-verse opus penned by Sterling for recitation during abalone-pounding parties.

"Abalone they generally liked to eat because it was free, but you have to pound the abalone on the rocks first, and they'd chant the 'Abalone Song.' " Coppens said.

To quote a verse from "The Abalone Song:"

"Some stick to biz, some flirt with Liz,
Down in the sands at Coney;
But we, by hell! stay in Carmel,
And nail the abalone."

Succeeding verses were added by other writers.

Within a few years, the original writers' colonists moved away, the village grew more populous and its character changed.

But for a few short years, recalls the archivist, "It was a simple life, and very pleasant, rich and full."

GEORGE STERLING is often regarded as the central figure who helped establish Carmel as a writers' colony in the early years of this century. The author of "The Abalone Song" is paid tribute along with Mary Austin in a new exhibit at the Harrison Memorial Library Park Branch.

GroveMont Theater plans move to larger quarters

By ANNE PAPINEAU

DURING A period when the federal government closed doors to national parks and monuments, the local GroveMont Theater Arts Center stands poised for expansion.

GroveMont was launched in 1983 on the proverbial shoestring, lacking even its own stage. But before 1990 is out, the GroveMont staff plans to move into an 8,000-square-foot site in downtown Monterey. And GroveMont will retain its theater in New Monterey.

"We have a seven-year lease with option to purchase," said Stephen Moorer, GroveMont founder and executive director. The new location is at 425 Washington St. in Monterey, and formerly housed a nightclub, the Old Monterey Music Hall.

According to Moorer, GroveMont will continue to lease its theatrical home of the past five years, the GroveMont Theater Arts Center at Lighthouse and Hoffman in New Monterey.

"We'll keep leasing that and turn it into a second stage. One of our problems in the past is we have a hit play and we have to close it to make room for the next show," Moorer said. "We had several shows last season that could have played twice as long, Eleemosynary and Daddy's Dyin', Who's Got the Will? Now if we have a hit show, we have a second stage we can move it to and it can play out its natural run."

Moorer's plans for the new theater are ambitious and specific.

"We want to take two months and do a minor, 150-seat remodel so we can open on New Year's weekend with the Tom Foolery New Year's Eve Gala," he said.

Tom Foolery, a compilation of the songs of satirist Tom Lehrer, is currently playing in the GroveMont Theater Arts Center in New Monterey.

"In February we'll open Early One Evening at the Rainbow Bar and Grill," he added. "During our first-stage remodel, we'll bring it up to 150 seats, and by Fall '91, we'll do a second stage remodel and take it up to 230 seats."

The original GroveMont Theater has undergone periodic remodeling to accommodate larger audiences.

"A year ago, we were 53 seats. Now we're 93 seats and we're already turning people away," Moorer said.

The GroveMont Theater is registered non-profit. It produces shows not only at its New Monterey base, but at several Monterey Peninsula locations.

Concluding its run on Saturday, Oct. 13 is the Carmel Shake-speare Festival, which brings A Midsummer Night's Dream and Alice in Wonderland, plus other programs, to the Outdoor Forest Theater in Carmel.

GroveMont also produces Monterey Bay TheatreFest, which brings a summer's worth of shows, many of them admission-free, to the Custom House Plaza in Monterey. And GroveMont has purchased a "Big Top Tent," which

'Wuthering Heights' opens new Staff Players season

By ANNE PAPINEAU

DIRECTOR MARSHA Hovick and her ensemble of players will attempt to "go for broke" in staging Emily Bronte's romantic classic, Wuthering Heights.

The drama opens the 20th season of productions presented by The Staff Players Repertory Company, and according to Hovick, "It's potent stuff. Wuthering Heights takes really gifted, risk-taking actors to play such a story. It can't be done with stiff-lipped approximation. We're very fortunate in our cast."

The Staff Players Repertory Company grew out of Marsha Hovick's other Carmel brainchild, the Children's Experimental Theatre (CET). Twenty years ago, the staff members who led CET workshops for children decided to put on a show of their own. Today, the name remains unchanged, but Staff Players' also recruits players from outside company ranks.

"The nucleus of the company is still the staff. We do the kind of plays actors never get to do: Moliere, Shaw, the classics," explained Hovick. "We've had great good fortune attracting able actors to vehicles they want to be part of. And we're kind of a museum of good theater so that the children enrolled in CET can see where they can go."

For Wuthering Heights, the Staff Players are working from a 30-year-old adaptation by Gaylord Marr. This play encompasses a greater span of Bronte's 1847 book than the famed 1939 film version that starred Merle Oberon as Cathy and Laurence Olivier as Heathcliff.

"Emily Bronte's book goes on to tell you what happens to the children of the three young adults, and the movie version really covers about the first half of the book," the director said. "She published the book under the pseudonym of Ellis Bell. It was considered by Miss Bronte that a woman writer would not be properly respected."

Like the original novel, the Staff Players' Wuthering Heights is set around the late 1700s and early 1800s.

"It's the story of an outcast lad brought to a home on the moors by a generous, if misguided gentleman," observed Hovick. "It's concerned with the undying passion and hatred his arrival precipitated."

The cast features Gail Higginbothom as Cathy, Kevin Caston as Heathcliff and Norman Stottmeister as Edgar. The supporting cast includes Suzanne Crain, Loel Shuler, Ellis Allbee, Jason Bond, Craig Dunbar, Ivan Flansburg, Nathan Cook and Patrick Pekin.

Stottmeister also designed the sets, and Loel Shuler created the costumes.

Wuthering Heights and the other Staff Players productions are staged at the Indoor Forest Theater, located adjacent to the historic Outdoor Forest Theater at Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel-by-the-Sea. The modest dimensions of the stage presents a perennial challenge to the Staff Players.

"This is a very filmic kind of script in that it was written with the location going back and forth. This story was not written with the unities in mind," Hovick stated. "After playing Shaw's St. Joan last year on our small stage, we have come to realize it is the imagination of the audience and the powerful tensions in the play that create reality on our stage."

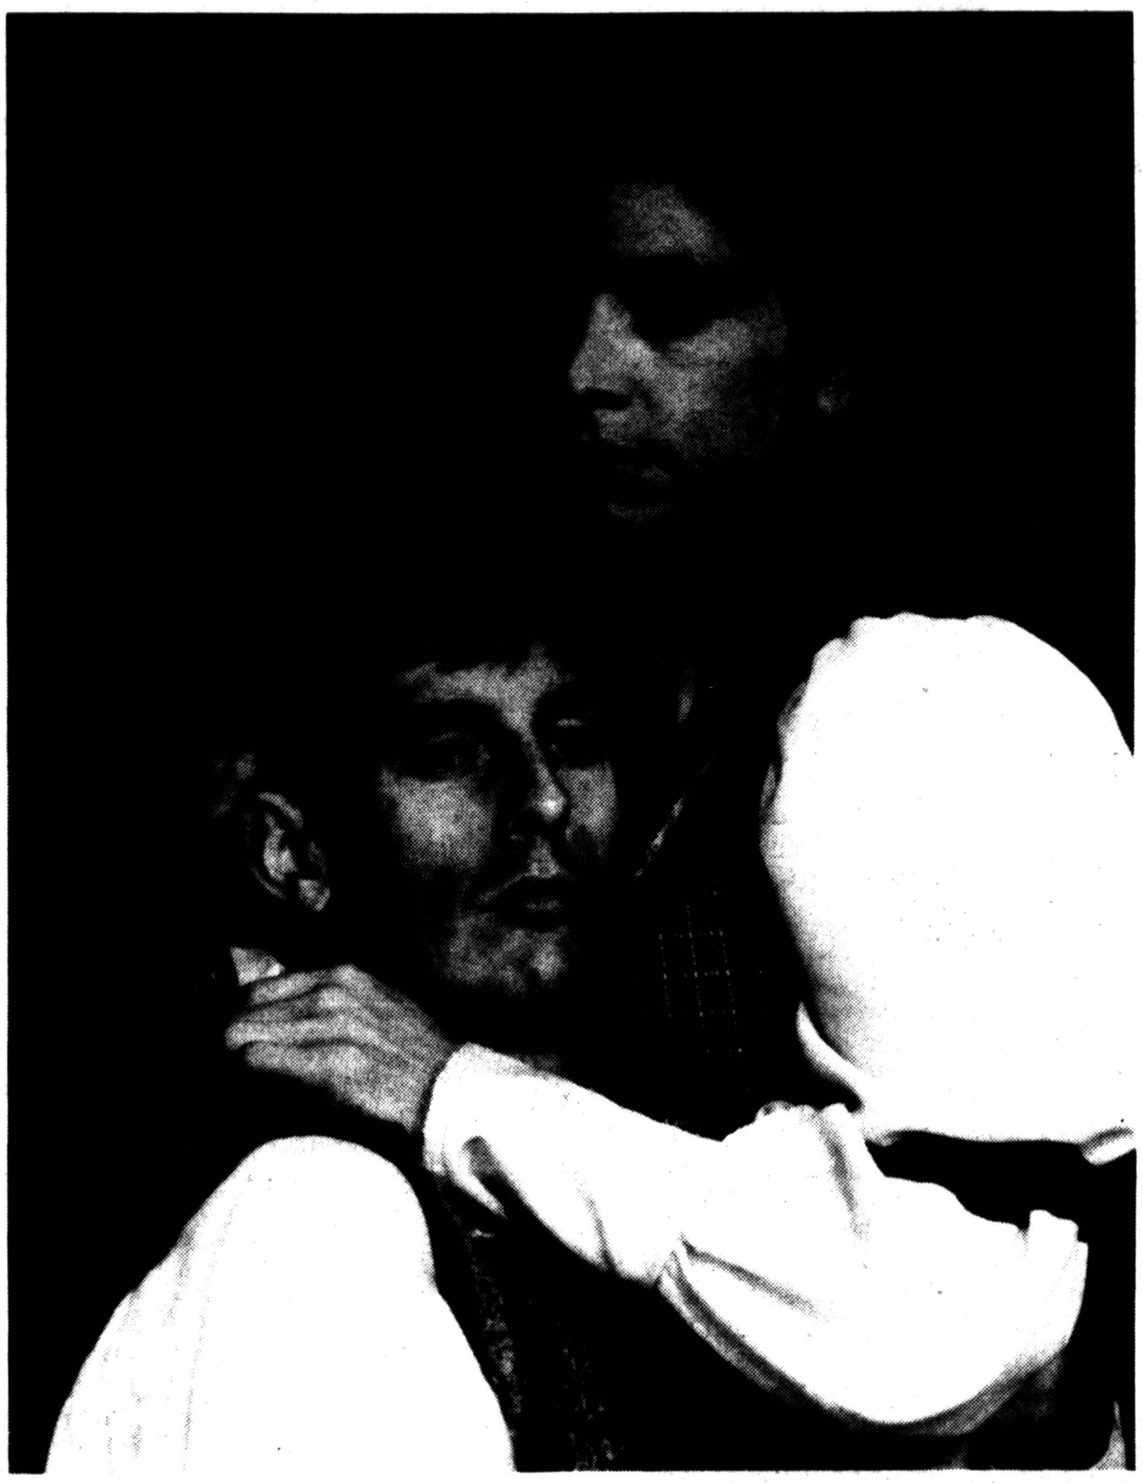
Wuthering Heights will open at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18. It continues at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays until Nov. 17. There are also 2:30 p.m. Sunday matinees on Oct. 28, Nov. 4 and 11.

'We've had great good fortune attracting able actors to vehicles they want to be part of. And we're kind of a museum of good theater so that the children enrolled in CET can see where they can go.'
— Marcia Hovick

The 1990-91 season of Staff Players' productions includes The Importance of Being Earnest, Nov. through Dec. 31; Beyond the Fringe, Jan. 10 through Feb. 9; Family Portrait, Feb. 20 through March 23; and Britannicus, April 11 through May 12.

"Last year we did Outward Bound, very stiff upper lip British stuff," Hovick observed. "Then we did Tartuffe, about scoundrels. Then St. Joan, a passionate piece in a detached, intellectual fashion. But Wuthering Heights is fun. It's about a lot of people whose headstrong behavior leads them to destruction."

For more information or tickets to the upcoming Staff Players season, call 624-1531.



KEVIN CASTON will portray Heathcliff and Gail Higginbothom is Cathy in the Staff Players Repertory Company 1990-91 season opener, Wuthering Heights. Emily Bronte's 1847 novel was adapted by Gaylord Marr.

This year cardiovascular disease will kill more Americans than two world wars.

Nearly one million Americans will die of heart attacks, strokes and other cardiovascular diseases this year. That's more than were killed in World War I and II combined. But you can reduce your risk of cardiovascular disease by eating a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, controlling your blood pressure, and not smoking. Do it now. ONE OF the country's leading exponents of Spanish Dancers will perform in concert on Saturday, Oct. 13 at Sunset Theater. Tickets are $12.50 and $10 to the 8 p.m. performance. For reservations call Sunset Center at 624-3996.

Lola Montes joined by Spanish dancers at Sunset

LOLA MONTES and Her Spanish Dancers will appear on the Sunset Theatre stage Saturday, Oct 13.

Lola Montes is one of the country's leading exponents of Spanish dancing. The trademark of this company of virtuoso dancers is "instant communication" as they present a varied and exciting panorama of Hispanic dance, music and song. Classical, folk and flamenco from Spain, as well as comic and exotic dances from Mexico and South America are performed in authentic costumes. The result is an eye-filling spectable which one Los Angeles critic called "more exciting than a bullfight."

Montes created her own dance company beginning with tours of the Pacific Coast, which were soon extended across the county and into Canada, Mexico and Hawaii. In five seperate tours of Canada, they have danced in every province, including the Northwest Territories.

They were the first professional Spanish dance company to concertize in Hawaii and have toured the state of Alaska twice. The company has danced the ballet seqences in "Carmen" and "La Traviata" with stars such as Shirley Varrett, Victoria Bargara, Justino Diaz, Jacques Trussell, Mary Costa, Rosilind Ellis and Mildred Miller.

During trips to Spain, Montes adds new choreographies to her ever-growing repertoire, makes new costumes and acquires accessories such as combs, mantillas, shawls, hats and jewelry. She designs many of her own costumes. All folk costumes are authentic and come from the regions where the dances originate.

While in Mexico, Lola Montes was enchanted by the folklore of the country. She chose to represent these dances after learning them in their native environment.

In 1974, the Lola Montes Foundation for Dances of Spain and the Americans was established, dedicating itself to preserving the cultural heritage of Hispanic dance and music. The Foundation now supports the activities of Lola Montes andd Her Spanish Dancers.

California Heritage, one of the Montes Company's Panorama of Performances, was an endorsed project of the Los Angeles Bicentennial. The program was filmed during a celebration at the historic Gilmore Adobe and enclosed in a time capsule to be opened in 2081.

Montes has been the recipient of many awards and has been recognized for the contributions she has made to dance. Heralding the Olympic Arts California Dance Festival in 1984, an exhibit containing memorabilia of ten prominent choreographers was displayed. Lola Montes ws one of the choreographers included in the exhibit..

Tickets for the performance by Lola Montes and Her Spanish Dancers are available for $12.50 and $10 and may be purchased at the Sunset Center Director's Office in Carmel or Center Stage Ticketing in Monterey, 649-5561. The Sunset Theater is located on San Carlos Street at ninth Avneue Carmel.

THEATER REVIEW

By James P. Kinney

'Tom Foolery' at the GroveMont

BAD-MOUTHING the 1960s has become a revisionist sport of some status and appeal among certain segments of our society.

Scorn and ridicule are piled on the acid-crazed hippies and naive flower children in beads and sandals who staggered and danced through that zonked-out decade shunning soap, tuning out, and practicing the incredible heresy that making love was healthier for human beings than making war.

Now, of course, our betters put it right for us. War is good because it enhances the economy. War makes the Dow Industrials rise. It provides Cheap Oil. It preserves our standard of living. The aberration of Viet Nam in which 57,000 Americans were killed and millions spiritually devastated was not really a war. It was a "syndrome." And syndromes, as everybody knows, merely require a forgetting kind of medication.

Thus speaketh our revisionist sportsmen.

But for the many who still tend secret gardens in their hearts for the significant things that happened amid all the obvious excesses of that decade, the rolling cadences of Martin, the political passions of Bobby, and the cleansing indignations of Malcolm still resonate. For them, the soaring soprano of Joan Baez' miraculous voice and the consciously irritating baritone rasp of Bob Dylan still echo. And, with them, must always be added the withering wit and inspired irreverence of Tom Lehrer.

This past weekend a musical revue built around the music and lyrics of Lehrer, called Tom Foolery, opened at the GroveMont. Four talented local singers – Kelley Alexander, Kevin Hanstick, Jim Sutty and Eleanor Wylde – engage in an energetic musical romp through 28 songs written and first performed by Tom Lehrer that offered solace and sanity to so many during the chaotic '60s.

Looking back, it seems like somebody was always quoting the sly, satirical lyrics of Lehrer. They served as an astringent antidote to the poisonous official lies of that decade. What truly amazes is how Lehrer's inspired music and words, largely written in the 1950s and 1960s, still have the power both to entertain and to confront the new, improved official lies served up in our current decade.

Attend. "So long, Mom/I'm off to drop the bomb/So don't wait up for me. I'll be back to see you when the war is over/an hour and a half from now."

And, "National Brotherhood Week/National Brotherhood Week/National Everybody-Love-One-Anotherhood Week."

And, "First you get down on your knees/Fiddle with your rosaries/Clasp your hands/and bow your head/and genuflect, genuflect, genuflect."

As the current revue makes clear, Lehrer was, and apparently still is (may he live long and prosper!), a satirical musical genius. Songs like "Pollution," "Send the Marines," "Who's Next?" "Masochism Tango," and "Vatican Rag" were able to tickle the funnybones and energize the imaginations of the audience in which I sat last weekend as effectively as they did the audiences of 30 years ago.

Directed by Stephen Moorer, under the musical direction of Barbara Souza, the four performers moved through the Lehrer repertoire smoothly, creating a variety of emotions in musical vignettes which caught the distinct Lehrer sound, whether done ensemble, in duets or solo efforts.

During the two-hour show, these numbers caught my special attention: Sutty's renditions of "The Hunting Song" (Beware, N.R.A.!) and "The Masochism Tango." The first, sung in a barely controlled sadistic whisper, the latter a riotous mixture of mock angst, madcap movement and comic erotic passion.

Hanstick's treatment of "The Elements," is apparently the table of chemical elements set to Arthur Sullivan's "I am the Very Model of a Modern Major General" from Pirates of Penzance, and "New Math." Here the singer displayed an impressive breath control and the clear diction such complex songs require.

Alexander used his comfortable baritone to good effect in his handling of "My Home Town" and "I Got it From Agnes." He extracted every wry nuance in this biting satirical masterpiece on Everytown, U.S.A. and his involvement with the audience in the latter sexual malady's odyssey was particularly effective.

Wylde, stunning in her many colorful (and quick) costume changes, (costume design by John Newkirk), brought a special verve and class to "In Old Mexico" and, backed by her three male companions, shrewd and wicked awareness to the more than a little deadly "Irish Ballad."

Barbara Souza, seated at the keyboard, deserves special mention for her ability to keep track of the variety of tempi and moods required by the show. She was on target and the singers seemed genuine in their appreciation for her supportive skills.

Clear recommendation here for an evening of wit and good music in GroveMont's current show, Tom Foolery.

County Symphony celebrates Danish cultural riches

DENMARK and Danish music will be saluted as the Monterey County Symphony opens its 45th season. A series of concerts beginning Sunday, Oct. 14 will feature the world premiere of "Concertante for Bassoon and Flute," a work commissioned by the Danish government especially for this event.

Danish composer, Sven Erik Werner, will attend the premiere, joined by Danish government officials. Members of the Sealand Symphony Orchestra of Copenhagen will be the soloists. They are Lena Bust Neilson, flute, and Karen Lassen, bassoon. Maestro Clark E. Suttle will conduct the performances.

A gala salute to Denmark is set Friday, Oct. 12 at the Monterey Sheraton. The ballroom will be transformed into a "Street in Copenhagen," complete with music, vendors, sights and sounds of Denmark's capital city.

This opening reception, set 6 to 8 p.m., will be followed by a gala dinner, and later by dancing. The five-course Danish dinner will feature such traditional favorites as akvavit, pork loin stuffed with prunes and apples, Copenhagen salad and Danish cheese board.

Friday's gala will also feature a drawing for prizes that include exclusive dinners, stays in luxury hotels and a library of compact disc recordings.

The symphony will then make music on Sunday through Tuesday, Oct. 14-16. Concert times are 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 14 at King Hall in the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey; 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 15 in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel; and 8 p.m. Tueday, Oct. 16 in Sherwood Hall, 940 N. Main St., Salinas.

The program will open with "Overture to Aladin" by Horneman. The premiere of Werner's "Concertante for Flute and Bassoon" is next, and the concert concludes with Neilsen's "Symphony No. 4, Op. 29."

Flutist Lena Bust Nielsen was educated at the Royal Danish Music Conservatorium by Professor Poul Birkelund and completed further studies with William Bennet in London. Since 1975 she has been a member of the Copenhagen Philharmonic Orchestra, which plays every summer in Tivoli Gardens under the name of "Tivoli Symphony Orchestra." Simultaneously, she has worked as a soloist and chamber musician and is a member of the Copenhagen Woodwind Quintet. She is a recipient of the Noilly Prat Prize for musicianship.

Karen Lassen, bassoon, studied at the Royal Danish Music Conservatorium. She was a member of the Danish Radio Symphony Orchestra from 1976 to 1982 when she was appointed principal bassoon in the Copenhagen Philharmonic Orchestra. Lassen participated in the World Orchestra of Jeunesses Musicales in Canada in 1976 and in Korea and Japan in 1977. In 1978 she was awarded the Jacob Gade Prizen. Lassen is also a member of the Copenhagen Woodwind Quintet.

For additional information or tickets to any of these events, contact the Monterey County Symphony at 624-8511.

MAESTRO Clark E. Suttle will conduct the Monterey County Symphony during its 45th season. The opening concert series, set Sunday through Tuesday, Oct. 16, will feature the world premiere of "Concertante for Flute and Bassoon" by Sven Erik Werner. The work was commissioned by the Danish government especially for this event.

GroveMont Theater prepares to expand again

each summer becomes the setting for fully mounted musicals, also in the Custom House Plaza.

There are no plans to change these operations.

In February and October of 1991, plans are in the works for GroveMont to present two dinner-theater shows at the Mission Ranch, Carmel.

The GroveMont Theater Arts Center has become the Monterey Peninsula venue for new works. Moorer said the 1991 season will continue in that vein, but the series will be split between the two theaters.

The Washington Street address will be the setting for productions of Steel Magnolias and Nunsense. The original theater will house Talk Radio, A Walk in the Woods and Driving Miss Daisy.

According to Moorer, the new building is leased from the John and Dorothy Crivello Family Trust.

"We're starting an immediate $50,000 fund drive to do the renovations. Part of that is a $10,000 matching grant from the Carolyn and Joseph Samson Philanthropic Fund," he said.

The original GroveMont theater will in effect become the company's "second stage."

"We'll make the second stage available to other groups. During the daytime hours Monday through Friday, we'll be renting it out on an hourly basis for yoga, t'ai chi or acting classes," Moorer stated. "There's an acute need for special topic classes here. Sunset Center and the Pacific Grove Art Center are full, and I think that will fill a need."

Additionally, Moorer said there are plans to rent out two retail spaces in the front of the new theater on Washington Street.

"We'll try to rent them out to related users, something like a ticket agency, theater bookstore or art gallery. One of them will be a food service place like a coffeehouse or a deli," he said.

Fundraising Oktoberfest set at Big Sur's River Inn

THE RIVER INN Resort in Big Sur will host its first-ever Oktoberfest Saturday and Sunday Oct. 13-14, as a fund-raising effort for the Big Sur Fire House building fund.

Oktoberfest highlights will include an array of German food and beer, arts and crafts booths, games for the kids and live entertainment – all taking place in the expansive backyard behind the River Inn overlooking the Big Sur River. In addition to German specialities, guests can order breakfast, lunch or dinner from the River Inn's standard menu.

Part of the proceeds from the event will be donated to the Big Sur Fire Brigade building fund for construction of the Big Sur Fire House.

Consisting of 40 local men and women, the Big Sur Fire Brigade volunteers currently haul fire fighting equipment from place to place for storage and training. The brigade's five fire engines are stored outside leaving them subject to harsh coastal elements.

Because Big Sur residents have chosen to keep Big Sur much the same as it was 100 years ago, residents have long fought against federalization of the area and consequently have one of the most restrictive development plans in the nation.

Due to this chosen independence from government control, Big Sur residents recieve no federal or state funding and, therefore, are entirely responsible for their own fire protection dependent upon gifts and donations.

The forest service does attend to brush and wilderness forest fires, but dedicated area volunteers are responsible for all the structures along the Big Sur coastline.

The land for the proposed fire house has been generously donated by Billy Post, a member of one of Big Sur's pioneer families. Plans to erect the fire house are completed but funds to build it are still being raised.

"Big Sur is really a national treasure," said Alan Perlmutter, owner of River Inn Resort and chairman of the Big Sur Fire House fund-raising drive. "Therefore, it is important that we all get involved with its protection. The Oktoberfest is a fun way to celebrate the fall season and also donate to a good cause. We intend to make this an annual event at the River Inn."

According to Perlmutter, the need for a fire house is imperative for a number of reasons – storage of valuable equipment, a training facility for volunteers and to have ready access to equipment.

The two-day Oktoberfest is co-sponsored by KCBA-Channel 35, KOCN 105FM and River Inn Resort in Big Sur.

Library reception for Heron Collection

HERBERT HERON, pictured here in the July 1911 Forest Theater production of Twelfth Night, is remembered via the newly acquired Herbert Heron Collection. The collection opens to public view with a reception set 6 p.m. Friday, Oct. 12 at the Harrison Memorial Library Park Branch, Sixth and Mission, Carmel. Heron (1883-1968), visited Carmel in 1908 to see his friend George Sterling, and decided to stay. A poet and actor, he also built and ran Seven Arts book store, was a member of the city council during the 1930s and served a two-year term as mayor. He is probably best known for his work in organizing the Forest Theater. The collection was purchased with funds from the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea and the Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library. Additional items were donated by San Francisco bookseller John Crichton.

Former 'Herald' book editor to speak at Fall Literary Tea

A REVIEW of Local Writers in the Past 30 years'' is the offering of the Fall Literary Tea sponsored by the Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library. Featured speaker will be Susan Bernhardt, recently retired from the The Herald after 12 years as its Sunday and Book Editor.

The free program will begin at 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 14 at Harrison Memorial Library, Ocean Avenue at Linclon Street in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Born in Utah, Bernhardt earned a degree in journalism at the University of Oregon in Eugene. Her first job was in Oregon where she hand-set type on a small weekly newspaper. She joined The Herald in August, 1961 as a copy editor and worked for the paper for 29 years.

Bernhardt has a family of two sons and granddaughter. She has lived in the same house in Seaside for 30 years.

An avid reader, she loves to dip into many different fields. Being Scottish, she became interested in Scottish country dancing, took classes, and became a teacher in that difficult and graceful dance form.

There is no charge for this event which is open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

Cleveland Quartet to open 23rd chamber music season

THE CLEVELAND quartet will open the 23rd season of chamber music concerts at Sunset Theatre, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel, at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18. The concert is presented by the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula, and is funded, in part, by the Monterey County Cultural Council, the City of Carmel, and the AT&T Pro-Am Youth Fund.

The quartet, with William Preucil and Peter Salaff, violins; James Dunham, viola, and Paul Katz, cello, will play Haydn's Quartet in D-major, Op. 76, No. 5; a new composition by Stephen Paulus titled "Quartessence;" and Beethoven's Quartet in F-minor, Op. 95, "Serioso."

Now entering its 22nd year, the Cleveland quartet is acclaimed for its performances in the world's music capitals and for its recordings of more than 50 chamber works.

During the 1990/91 season the quartet will perform in nine European countries, South Korea, Taiwan, and Japan in the Far East, and in North America in New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Detroit, Montreal, Toronto, as well as Carmel.

The members of the Cleveland Quartet perform on a matched set of Stradivarius instruments that once belonged to Paganini and are on loan to them from the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. Each member of the quartet teaches his instrument at the Eastman School of Music.

William Preucil, violin, became the first violinist of the Cleveland Quartet in July, 1989, after serving as concertmaster of the Atlanta Symphony for seven seasons. Preucil began his violin studies at the age of 5 with his mother. Upon graduation from Indiana University, at the age of 22, he was appointed concertmaster of the Nashville Symphony and also served in this capacity with the Utah Symphony before going to Atlanta in 1982.

Peter Salaff, violin, studied at the Eastman School of Music and did graduate studies at the Yale University School of Music. Prior to the formation of the Cleveland Quartet in 1969, Salaff spent summers at the Aspen and Marlboro music festivals, and served three years as a member of the Peace Corps in Chile, where he taught violin at the Universidad de Conception.

James Dunham, viola, studied at the Interlochen Arts Academy, Carleton College and the California Institute of the Arts. He was a founding member of the Sequoia String Quartet which toured in the United States and abroad. He has participated in music festivals, and toured with the Music from Marlboro series.

Paul Katz, cello, was a student of Gregor Piatigorsky, Janos Starker and Leonard Rose. In his early 20's he was a member of the University of Southern California String Quartet and the Toledo Quartet, both international prize winners in Munich and Geneva. He participated in Rudolf Serkin's Marlboro Music Festival and has appeared as a soloist in cities throughout North America.

In addition to his performing and teaching activities, Katz is now in his fourth year as president of Chamber Music America, the national service organization which has in its membership virtually all of the country's 800 professional chamber music ensembles.

Following the Cleveland Quartet, the 1990/91 season will continue with Razoumovsky Plus Larsen, a piano quartet, Nov. 30; the Angeles Quartet, Jan. 11; the Orford Quartet, Feb. 1; the Waverly Consort, March 5; and conclude with the winners of the Carmel Chamber Music National Competition, March 31.

Membership in the Chamber Music Society with admission to all concerts is $30. Single tickets are $10 ($5 for those under 21) at the door before each concert. For information call 625-2212.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

TWO GIANTS — Dizzy Gillespie and Stan Getz shared many backstage laughs at this year's Monterey Jazz Festival. (Will Wallace photo.)

Another gig

NAMES: Good for him. The breakup of Monterey Vocal Jazz Ensemble hasn't sent multi-talented Bill Allison into hiding.

As noted here recently, Bill's building a jazz choir at Seaside's Oldemeyer Center and works with other young folks from Robert Louis Stevenson School. Now comes word of another Allison gig.

On Wednesday evenings from nine o'clock till midnight, Bill works Pablo's in The Barnyard with Brian Stock (flugelhorn) and guitarist Joe Lucido. Allison will play bass and keyboards — and of course he'll sing. (Pablo's offers good Mexican dishes and bar service.)

Meanwhile, Bill continues hosting Sunday evening sessions at Barbara Murphy's Portofino Coffee House in Pacific Grove. He: "We've agreed to go for it. If folks keep showing up, we could be there throughout the winter season."

Probably even cave-dwellers know that Brazilian pianist and composer and arranger Weber Drummond lives in Monterey these days. All of his skills gain representation via the CD he co-produced for flutist Vera Guimaraes. (She came up in Sao Paulo, studied with James Newton and at various university music systems, today does film scoring from a Los Angeles base.)

Package: Stirring the Forest on the Apamas label. It shares the positive enchantment so long associated with first-rate Brazilian efforts. The 10 tracks include originals by brilliant writers — Hermeto Pascoal, Milton Nascimento, Marcos Ariel, Weber, Vera, Celia Malheiros, Moacir Santos, James Newton himself. The percussionist Michael Spiro and Gary Brown (electric bass) serve the date well. Newton plays beside Vera on one cut.

If you've a special lover or identified a candidate within the crowd, this album would make one fine gift. Unlike too many North Americans, these Brazilians know that sensual pursuits needn't cancel out humor and delight and sounds of innocence.

(Master percussionist Helcio Milito and Weber work together at Spanish Bay Lobby Lounge. Wednesday through Sunday evenings and not to be bypassed.)

Local photographers Will Wallace and Ron Daniels have one picture apiece in the October number of that national journal called JazzTimes. (Available at downtown Monterey's Abinante Music.) It's my rather astounded pleasure to have three reviews in the one issue — Monterey Bay Blues Festival, pianist Dorothy Donegan at Kimball's, the latest Spike Lee film. Editors say that the publication will adopt "a glossy magazine format" starting with the December edition.

Same issue announces the long-awaited album by saxist Charles LLoyd, whose meditative woodshed years in Big Sur built a sense of mystery and anticipation within the music business. (ECM 1398. Fish Out of Water.) I haven't heard these tracks but respected critic Fred Bouchard employs phrases like "wistful, keening tenor" that looks "back at modal playing through rosy shades." Fred says Charles sounds as if he's a sad philosopher today.

Seaside Art Commission's master plan contains a most promising item under fiscal year 1991-92: "Organize and conduct an Original Music Showcase at Oldmeyer Center with various categories of entrants who perform music which they have written." Right on. One of the best things about the early Monterey Jazz Festival was its commitment to commissioned work and other new compositions.

MJF Education Committee (under Joe Green's leadership) maintains creative ways. Arrangements have been made with Monterey Bay Club so that teen players may jam with hired pros. The bar will be closed on those Sunday afternoons. Joe promises the full story when all details click and settle.

DATES: Monterey Bay Club reverses direction. Bean counters recently cut into live jazz programming with the introduction of Monday Night Football. But on Thursday evening (10/11), pianist Smith Dobson brings in a full septet. However brief the bounty, let us enjoy.

Other bookings — JB and Nightshift (10/12-13), Alan Berman (10/14), gridiron gambols (10/15), Jack and Ed Show (10/16), Higher Feelings (10/17-18).

Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz spotlights jazz poet and essayists Al Young on Friday night (10/12). The special October series helps mark the venue's 15th anniversary. Always pertinent, Al will read from his work while "a local all-star trio" cooks behind. It's $8 per; call 1-427-2227 for reservations and start time.

The Kuumbwa act for Monday evening (10/15) — Earthworks fronted by drummer Bill Bruford. Says the flack sheet: "Utilizing the latest in music technology, Bruford expands the role of drummer well beyond its traditional boundaries." Shows at 7:30 and 9:30; $13 apiece; Center Stage Ticketing.

Barefoot, that excellent band from Big Sur, plays The Catalyst in Santa Cruz very shortly (Friday night 10/19). These folks love it when audience members get up and boogie. Door charge of $5.50.

Oakland blueswoman Lady Bianca has been held over through October by the Hyatt Regency. She rocks out in Whispers Lounge.

Blues-based pianist Ace Hill performs Thursday through Saturday evenings at Doubletree Lobby Lounge. Highlands Inn has the Monica Harle Trio on Friday and Saturday nights. Don't miss those jams hosted by bassist Norm Ross at The Firehouse (Thursday and Saturday nights). Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra on Monday evenings at Mission Ranch Barn, of course. Pianist Bobby Phillips plays in Quail Lodge (Wednesday through Sunday).

MIGHTY IMPRESSIVE. This reaction's appropriate to the schedule of event released by San Francisco Jazz Festival (was Jazz in the City). The eighth annual slate starts later this month (10/25) and closes out in early November (11/4).

Some highlights: Latin jam and dance (10/26-27), New Jazz Horizons with players like Don Cherry and Nana Vasconcelos and Peter Apfelbaum (10/27), Sacred Space concert at Grace Cathedral with Joe Henderson and Zakir Hussain (10/28), United States premiere of a major film on Benny Carter (10/29), Halloween Madness of Richie Cole and friends (10/31), An Evening with Tony Williams (11/2), Nat Cole Tribute with Mark Murphy and others (11/3), Solo Piano with Miss Donegan and the superb Andrew Hill (11/4).

Call producer Randall Kline and/or info rep Ann Dyer for the richly-detailed newsletter. At (415) 864-5449.

CLINT EASTWOOD's participation as executive producer brought the project to completion. That compelling documentary entitled Thelonius Monk: Straight, No Chaser now has been approved by Warner Brothers for release through video shops this month. Suggested retail price — $88.95.

Foster care families needed

The Office of Community and Children's Services needs homes willing to share their families with children who need an alternative home — whether it be for six months or the whole year — while family reunification services are offered, or eventually a permanent home.

Almost every currently licensed foster home is filled, the office reports. For information about fostering or adopting a child, call 899-8061 or 755-4660.

Jazz Festival posters exhibited

"ALL THAT Jazz," an exhibition of Monterey Jazz Festival posters, continues through Oct. 28 at the Monterey Airport Gallery in celebration of the 33rd birthday of the jazz festival. The show, assembled from posters in local private collections, features the work of artists and designers who each year of the festival have interpreted and heralded the event in their own way. These images include Earl Newman's 1974 silk-screened saxophone player, Eldon Dedini's 1964 "Dizzy for President" poster, and Bautista Moon Studios' color photo posters for 1980, '82 and '84.

Sheriff's Teddy Bear Campaign underway

For the sixth year, Sheriff "Bud" Cook is collecting teddy bears to donate to needy children at Christmas and to also support the Sun Street Center Christmas Party for children.

In past years, parents have cleaned out their toy boxes to donate to this program. Older children have searched their rooms to fine unused toys which they can give to less fortunate families.

Collection points for teddy bears and other toys are the Sheriff's sub-station, 1200 Aguajito Road, in the Monterey Courthouse; and the Sheriff's office at 1414 Natividad Road, Salinas. If it is difficult for someone to make delivery, call 755-3950 and arrangements will be made for items to be picked up.
